Canal treaty differences resolved, says Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter said today he and Panamanian leader Omar Torrijos have 'successfully resolved' differences of interpretation in the wording of the new Panama Canal treaty.

Carter said the differences, which have been raised principally in Congress, involve the right of American ships to have "expeditious passage" through the canal in times of war or other emergencies and U.S. rights to defend the waterway's neutrality.

'We have successfully resolved the remaining differences of interpretation that have been raised about our right to defend the canal as well as the right of our ships to have expeditious passage," Carter told a group of newspaper editors from around the country.

However, Carter said, the United States has made clear it has "no intention to intervene in Panama.

The President said a statement outlining the clarification has been prepared but would not be released until later.

Carter and Torrijos met for more than 90 minutes earlier today, and a White House spokesman said afterwards that other officials of the United States and Panama "are continuing to discuss the clarification" to dispel questions raised in both countries about the proposed treaty.

Carter had told a Thursday news conference a "clarifying statement" might be needed on the major point in dispute - conflicting interpretations of the provision for joint U.S.-Panamanian defense of the canal's neutrality after the year 2000.

White House Deputy Press Secretary Rex Granum said today that the White House expected such a statement would be issued in advance of a plebiscite in Panama, which is nine days away, on whether or not to approve the treaty.

The White House spokesman said Carter and Torrijos, who originally had been scheduled to confer for about an hour, had a "very amicable meeting." He said Carter felt it was marked by "a great deal of friendship, mutuality of interest and Granum said he did not know who was involved in continuing discussions about the possible drafting of a clarifying statement.

He reported that Carter "feels that he and Gen. Torrijos have never had a misunderstanding" about the meaning of the treaty. He said the same could be said for the American and Panamanian negotiators.

Ehrlichman's sentence is reduced

WASHINGTON (AP) - The second prison sentence of former White House aide John D Ehrlichman was reduced today, making him eligible for parole after

U.S. District Court Judge Gerhard A. Gesell reduced Ehrlichman's sentence in the so-called White House plumbers' case to 42 months from 20 months to five years, and said "the court specifies that the prisoner may be released on parole at such time as the parole commission determines." If the commission acts quickly Ehrlichman could be out of prison at Safford, Ariz., by Christmas.

Gesell's action follows by 10 days a cut of Ehrlichman's sentence in the Watergate cover-up case.

Hanna indicted on bribery, fraud charges

WASHINGTON (AP) - Former Rep. Richard T. Hanna was indicted today on federal charges of bribery, fraud and conspiracy stemming from alleged South Korean efforts to buy influence among members of Congress.

Hanna, a California Democrat who served in the House from 1963 through 1974, was the first excongressman to be indicted in the Justice Department probe of alleged attempts by South Koreans to ply members of Congress with cash and other favors in exchange for actions favorable to the South Korean government.

A federal grand jury in U.S. District Court in Washington returned the indictment charging Hanna with one count of conspiracy, three counts of bribery, one count of failing to register as a foreign agent. and 35 counts of mail fraud.

Heart attack fatal to Bing Crosby

MADRID, Spain (AP) — American singer Bing Crosby died Friday while playing golf in Madrid, the news agency Cifra reported. He was 73.

Crosby fell to the ground at the 17th hole of the La Moraleja golf club on Madrid's outskirts and was rushed to a hospital where he was pronounced dead of a heart attack, the Spanish agency said.

Crosby recently completed a tour of Britain — including a sell-out performance at London's Palladium - which he said was a test of his recovery from a back injury suffered in a fall from a theater stage in Pasadena, Calif. That show marked his 50th year in show business.

Just before his fall at the Ambassador Auditorium in Pasadena, Crosby told his audience, "I hope it won't be another 50 years before we can celebrate like this."

Doctors later found he had ruptured a disc in the lower part of his back and would require a long convalescence. Crosby's smooth, relaxed baritone made him one of the most popular singers in the world and several times a millionaire. He was known for his breezy manner, his loud sports shirts, his race horses, his golfing, and his needling friendship with comedian Bob Hope.

Several of his records sold more than a million copies. The most famous were two Christmas carols - "Silent Night" and "White Christmas."

Cifra said Crosby was playing golf with Spanish champions Manuel Pinero, Valentin Barrios and Cesar de Zulueta when he collapsed.

The crooner had come to Spain primarily for relaxation and golf, and was to have joined in a partridge hunt Saturday. He also had planned to play golf on the Spanish island of Majorca.

Trudy Berger, the cook at the Crosby home in Hillsborough, Calif., said, "He had been feeling fine - we were expecting him back in a day or two.

The brown-haired, blue-eyed crooner, who was variously nicknamed "Der Bingle," "Old Dad," and "The Groaner," won his audiences with smooth ballads and his casual manner.

Senate panel hands president's energy package another blow proposed by Carter - to aid conser-

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate Finance Committee today approved an energy bill that contains billions of dollars worth of tax breaks but none of the tax increases recommended by President Carter.

Staff technicians estimated the bill would save 2.2 million barrels of oil per day by 1985, at a cost to the government of $32 billion.

The House version of the tax bill, which included watered down versions of Carter's three proposed taxes, would save 1.7 million to 2.5 million barrels per day. Current consumption is about 18 million barrels

The bill was approved by an 11-6 vote. Two Republicans, Carl Curtis of Nebraska and John C. Danforth of Missouri, voted for the bill. Democrat Floyd Haskell of Colorado and independent Harry F. Byrd of Virginia joined four Republicans in opposing it.

Perhaps late next week, the committee will take a final look at the staff's detailed explanation and then take one last formal vote on the measure. Senate debate is likely to begin about Oct. 25.

The bill is sharply different from the version approved by the House in August. The House bill would rely mainly on new taxes to force conservation. The Finance Committee version rejects those taxes and would depend instead on a variety of tax breaks to help factories and power plants conserve fuel and to give the energy industry incentive to produce

If the Senate goes along with the Finance Committee approach, a Senate-House conference-would have to work out a compromise that included elements of both bills.

The Finance Committee approved the bill a day after Carter reminded a nationally broadcast news conference that he has veto power and authority to order gasoline rationing if Congress does not write an acceptable energy program.

Carter attacked the oil industry on Thursday, comparing it to those who reap enormous profits from the misery of war. He said removal of federal controls from the price of oil and natural gas could result in "the biggest ripoff in history.

Carter's remarks drew a predictable response from the oil companies - a Shell Oil spokesman called it "a damned severe attack" and left key Republicans unhappy.

Howard Blauvelt, chairman of Continental Oil Co., called Carter's remarks intemperate. John Swearingen, chairman of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, termed Carter's presentation "an emotional appeal to defend a tax program that is not defensible.

The President "ought to be the first to realize that he has a turkey on his hands," said Senate Minority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn. Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., a member of the finance committee, said the only hope for Carter's energy program is for the President to rewrite it.

Sen. Russell Long, chairman of the finance committee, which has been heavily responsible for rewriting the program, is leading congressional forces who view the Carter plan as too dependent on conservation and too weak on increased energy production.

The Louisiana Democrat's committee wants to use tax credits rather than the tax increases vation and provide greater produc-tion incentives for the oil and gas in-

The big tax break approved by the committee on Thursday would save an estimated one million barrels of oil daily by 1985, at a cost to taxpayers of more than $16 billion. In effect, the federal government would pay half the cost incurred by power plants and factories in converting their operations from oil-and gas-fired to coal-burning.

The companies would collect the benefit at the time they pay federal income taxes.

The tax break also would be available to firms that are so unprofitable that they owe no tax, as well as to schools, hospitals and other tax-exempt operations.

This could revolutionize energy use," Long told his colleagues.

Hijackers threaten to kill hostages, including beauty queens, if demands not met

(AP) - Arab-speaking terrorists holding a hijacked West German jetliner threatened today to kill their hostages, including 11 West German beauty queens, unless "comrades" imprisoned in West Germany and Turkey are released and a $15 million ransom is paid, officials said.

Ninety-two persons, including crew members and the hijackers, were reported aboard the plane. The beauty queens were returning to Frankfurt from a gift trip to the Spanish island of Mallorca when the plane was hijacked Thursday.

The hijackers also threatened that kidnaped West German industrialist Hanns Martin Schleyer, abducted by terrorists in West Germany nearly six weeks ago, would be killed if the demands are not met by 4 a.m. EDT

A text of the ultimatum was delivered to the French press agency AFP in Paris after the plane landed in this Persian Gulf emirate.

The ultimatum named 11 West German terrorists and two Palestinians held in Turkey who are demanded to be released and flown to Vietnam, Somalia or Marxist South Yemen. Each of the released prisoners was to be supplied with $43,860 in German marks.

The ultimatum, addressed to the West German government, declared, 'We shall not contact you again. ...

Any trial on your part to delay or deceive us will mean immediate ending of the ultimatum and execution of Mr. Hanns Martin Schleyer and all the passengers and the crew of the plane. The ultimatum was signed Struggle Against World Imperialism Organization" and ended with an attack on alleged neo-

President entertains 'Peanut Brigade'

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter threw a barbecue party on the White House lawn Thursday night for 500 Georgians whom he called "my closest friends in all the world.'

The occasion was a reunion for the "Peanut Brigade," the volunteers who fanned out throughout the primary states last year to get their man elected to the presidency.

"I always knew we'd be here on the South Lawn of the White House eating boiled peanuts and barbecued chicken," said Maxine Reese of Plains, Ga., as Oliver Wilson of Sandersville, Ga., shouted, "Georgia has taken over!'

In a sentimental speech, Carter said, "One of the challenges of the presidency is to stay in touch with the people.

Waxing biblical, he said, "When I was unknown and lonesome and had no money to pay for hotel expenses you took me in.' He drew laughter from the crowd when he said, "I never feel alone. When I achieve success, it's you. When I make mistakes, it's you." Carter, wearing a plaid flannel shirt, suede jacket and corduroy slacks, posed for hundreds of cameras. As is his custom, he kissed and hugged the women, remarking, "I wish I could do this every night. Another Georgian getting as much attention from the crowd was Bert

Piper, a student at New Buffalo Middle School, was found shot to death with a .22-caliber pistol Wednesday night. Authorities ruled it a suicide.

Police chief Dale Siebenmark, who doubles as a coach in this community of 2,784 persons, says he talked with the boy just hours before his death. He says young Piper, whose mother and stepfather had prevented him from playing for three weeks as a disciplinary measure, had some concern about not being able to play although he had already been allowed to return to the team.

'I guess everybody's grasping for reasons," said acting principal Tom Miller, who with Siebenmark had talked to the boy about a minor problem the day of his death. "He'd be the last kid you'd think would do that. There were a lot of tears in the hallway this morning ... it was a hard day here all day. Miller said he had talked to Piper

LOS ANGELES (AP) - After a two-week stalemate, striking California aerospace workers and the Lockheed Corp. have agreed to return to the bargaining table.

The giant aerospace company and the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers broke off talks Oct. 5 after reaching an impasse over pay raises and a proposed change in the workers' seniority system.

On Monday, 14,500 workers walked off their jobs at Lockheed's plants in Burbank, Palmdale and Sunnyvale, nearly crippling the company's production of jetliners and missiles.

Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. arrives at Lindburgh Field in San Diego for a round of public and private appearances. During the visit Brown said the state should "be selective" about seeking new, non-polluting industry. Brown, who toured San Diego Thursday, met recently in Los Angeles with Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan.

"In my meetings with Gen. Dayan," the California Democrat said, "he felt that the discussion obviously would have to go forward in a rather quiet manner, and quite possibly in many places outside Geneva. So Geneva is the beginning of a framework-it indicates a commitment—but to follow through will take discussions with Eygpt and are involved along with Israel.

'What Gen. Dayan was concerned about," Brown added, "was that involving the Russians too closely in a coordinated effort could slow down the process since one of the major stumbling blocks in the Arab-Israel conflict has been the presence of Russia and their rather negative attitude toward the state of Israel.'

Brown said that in his talks with Vice President Walter Mondale last week, he felt that bringing Russia in might encourage Syria to be open to an Israeli settlement.

Brown said he opposes including the Palestine Liberation Organization as a party to the talks, adding that the interests of Palestinian Arabs can be well represented by negotiators from the various Arab

SAN FRANCISCO (AP). - West Coast longshoremen were under federal court order today to stop observing a sister union's picket lines and begin loading or unloading about two dozen ships that have been forced to remain at anchorage. U. S. District Court Judge Cecil Poole granted a temporary restraining order Thursday night after a three-hour hearing.

The order is in effect pending an Oct. 27 hearing on a preliminary injunction. The order was requested by the Pacific Maritime Association, which represents West Coast shippers and has labor contracts with the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union.

Judge Poole's order to the ILWU, its officers and 27 of its locals, requires compliance with an order issued Tuesday by Sam Kagel, an arbitrator appointed by the PMA and Kagel held that the West Coast longshoremen couldn't refuse to cross picket lines set up by the ILA in California, Washington and Oregon ports because those ports are not regular work sites of ILA members. The ILA struck Atlantic and Gulf

Officials tell welfare mom to raid kids' piggy banks

Wendy Sabot says she wanted her children to believe in the virtues of hard work and thrift. So when welfare officials said she would have to raid the kids' savings accounts before she could qualify for welfare, she went to court.

The Court of Appeals, New York's highest tribunal, backed her up

Thursday. It ruled the decision of the welfare officials was "absurd and cruel" and ordered it reversed.

Suffolk County officials denied welfare to Ms. Sabot, who prefers that designation, in 1974. They said she first would have to spend all the $1,221 her children had saved from a newspaper route, baby sitting and gifts from relatives.

Ms. Sabot, acting as her own counsel, went to court, arguing it would be unfair to the children to take away their savings - and might also hamper her efforts to bring them up as "responsible adults who work and save and take care of themselves."

The court agreed, ruling opinion that the children's savings are not covered by laws requiring would-be welfare recipients to tap their own financial resources before going on relief.

"The broad, humanitarian purpose of the social services law does not contemplate that a person must be stripped bare, emotionally and economically," the court said.

Ms. Sabot, who now receives $208 a month in public assistance, will be paid some $1,200 for the six months she was denied assistance. County officials later agreed to give her welfare, but state officials would not allow a retroactive payment for the six

NEW YORK (AP) - Jacqueline Onassis has quit Viking Press, where she worked as an editor for two years, over its publication of a novel depicting an imagined assassination plot against her brother-in-law, Sen. Edward Kennedy.

The former first lady, widow of President John F. Kennedy, submitted a letter of resignation Thursday to Thomas Guinzburg, Viking publisher, according to Nancy Tuckerman, a spokeswoman for Mrs. Onassis.

Miss Tuckerman quoted Mrs. Onassis as telling her:

However, he said Thursday that Mrs. Onassis had expressed no "distress or anger" about the book months ago. He said she had "a feeling of resignation that people will go on using this bleak material."

Mrs. Tuckerman said Thursday that Mrs. Onassis was never consulted about the book and said she was "extremely upset" over its publication.

The novel, "Shall We Tell the President?," was published last Monday. Written by British author Jeffrey Archer, it tells of a plot to kill Edward Kennedy after he is elected president in 1980.

John F. Kennedy was assassinated in 1963. A third brother, Sen.

prize has been dominated by Americans since it was established in 1969. Six Americans have won the award, the most recent Chicago economist Milton Friedman.

Meade and Ohlin will share a cash prize of $145,000.

Meade is the third Englishman to be awarded the prize after Dennis Gabor in 1971 and John Hicks in 1973. Ohlin, 78, a leader of the Liberal party from 1944 to 1967, is the second Swede to receive the honor. Gunnar Myrdal won it in 1974.

Both men were cited for early work - as early as the 1930s for Ohlin and 1950s for Meade - but the academy said, "The breadth and importance of Ohlin's and Meade's contributions have, however, not become obvious until the 1960s and 1970s in conjunction with the growing Cambridge University, is a pioneer internationalization of the economic

Dayan outlines 6-point peace talk proposals

JERUSALEM (AP) - Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan, defending the government's acceptance of a U.S. plan for reconvening the Geneva peace conference, has disclosed the contents of the six-point proposal for the first time.

Dayan also indicated in parliamentary debate Thursday that a separate protocol with the United States assures Israel that though Palestinians would be represented at the peace talks, no member of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) would be seated.

CHICAGO (AP) - Was it an embezzlement, a burglary or just an accounting error? Apparently no one knows for sure how exactly $1 million in cash disappeared from the underground vault of the country's ninth largest bank.

But a spokesman for the First National Bank of Chicago said not one customer "is going to lose a penny."

Homer J. Holland, senior vice president in charge of administration, said the apparent loss has been charged against the bank's third-quarter earnings, which still are expected to exceed last year's third-quarter earnings.

The apparent loss is the biggest in the history of the bank, Holiand said. He added that the bank, second emerge from a foggy, foggy day.

She wondered aloud: "Why am I important?" Marina Prusakova Oswald Porter. Important to the world because she fell in love with Lee Harvey Oswald, the man who assassinated President John F. Kennedy.

Now 14 years after the tragic deed, Marina, who has remarried, once again is thrust into the limelight with the publication of a book about her and her late husband -'Marina and Lee," by Priscilla Johnson McMillan (Harper & Row, $15).

"I told my publisher I would only do a little touring with the book," she said over a glass of orange juice at a hotel restaurant. "It's hard living in a fish bowl. I don't want people to turn on the television set and see the same old dumb monkey all the time. "I have nothing new to say."

And then the litany of a guarded, sometimes insecure, sometimes fragile 36-year-old woman: "I'm not an interesting person. I'm not important enough. I'm just an ordinary housewife.

She says she enjoys housework and is not interested in a Marina says she's proud of her Russian heritage but now considers herself an American. "Time is a good healer," she said, eyes pale and cloudy

"From the beginning, I was as hurt as all Americans." She lives with her second husband, Kenneth Porter, a sewing machine salesman and repairman, in a Dallas suburb. "It's a different kind of love than I had with Lee.

It's a more mature love.' For the most part, she said, she lives from day to day. Her only goal is "to raise the children to be decent human

Her blue eyes grow intense and sparkle when she mentions her three children: June, 16; Rachel, 14; and Mark, feel like something.

The two girls were fathered by Oswald. Mark is her child with Porter. Marina told her daughters about Lee when they entered grade school.

'I told them the truth," she said. "I told them that if other children teased them, they should admit the truth. It's not their fault. They did nothing.

But she doesn't want them to read the 527-page book. 'Children sometimes resent parents for being too honest," she said. In fact, Mrs. Porter is disturbed about how the public might receive the tome. It details her troubled youth in Leningrad and her first meeting with Lee at a dance in Minsk in 1961. Then it traces their often stormy marriage to the events of November 22 and 23, 1963. "It was necessary to do the book," she said. "It was a must to reveal my private life. But people might be offended by the exposure of this private life. Do you think the women reading this book will be offended and hate She gazed off — to the distance — and then was silent. Life with Lee Harvey Oswald was brutal at times. He beat his wife and often lied to her, according to Marina and the published account. He would not permit her to learn English. Marina attempted suicide once but Lee stopped her. Finally, she learned he had married her to spite another woman. Other, more ominous events insinuated themselves into the relationship.

In a way, Marina said, the project has been therapeutic. I confided in another woman so she could give me advice," she said. "It was very easy to work with Priscilla. It was easy being open with her. She taught me how to analyze myself.

"I felt like nothing," said Marina. "But she made me

City Hall has a lady with answers

PB Staff Writer

Radio had its "answer man." The city of Pomona has its "answer lady," in Peggy Cook, who calls herself "Pomona's official greeter."

All types of questions confront Mrs. Cook, who sits at a desk inside the mall entrance to Pomona City

Her official title is administrative receptionist, and during the past 21/2 years she's answered thousands of questions or pointed people towards departments where they may obtain the information they desire.

People ask questions of local, county, state and federal interest, and only about 30 percent have to do with city government, Mrs. Cook

A woman asked where she could find a list of people doing business under an assumed name, or "DBAs" as they are called.

Another asked if she could find employment through City Hall at the

Los Angeles County Fair. A man asked where he could file for a homestead.

Mrs. Cook handled all three quite easily, and sent the people in the right direction.

'People don't differentiate between city, state and federal governments when they're seeking information," she explained.

Many seek marriage licenses at City Hall and are sent to the county clerk's office in the Superior Court building.

Many seek answers to senior citizen problems and are pointed in the direction of the Municipal Court building nearby

"I am gratified that I can help senior citizens," she said. "They don't realize that they have a referral center where they can obtain bus passes or rebates on their utility bills, or other valuable assistance.

She arrived at City Hall one day with applications for positions with Tri-City Mental Health Authority, Valley Association of Cities, and information clerk, and ended up with the last one.

She saidthe position was scheduled 10 years ago, with people from different departments assigned to the desk on a rotating basis.

That program didn't work out. By being the City Hall greeter, Mrs. Cook is able to point people in the right directions instead of their going to the wrong desks.

"Types of questions go in cycles," she said. "They depend on what is happening in the city at the time, such as the county fair, the federal census, or transportation to the fair.

"If they don't get the answers they want, I serve as a sounding board, she said.

Mrs. Cook explained that when she was hired, she visited the different city departments and chatted with employees about their operations.

That gives you an over-all picture of how the city is run," she said. "Oh, by the way, I conduct tours of City Hall by appointment.

A young man walked through the large glass door and inquired, "Where do I sign up for the

"This touches on the problem of undocumented aliens Ontario is having," said Ayala. "Most of us feel that Mexico doesn't care about patroling the border and keeping its people in Mexico.

'That is not true. Officials there strongly feel most people who leave Mexico really want to stay there, but it's a matter of economic survival.

Ayala related that in 1938 the Mexican government had broken up large land holdings into small farms and given land to citizens. He said now the government wants to lease back the land and provide jobs for people, but not in competition with California farmers."

That is the purpose of the visit;

Ayala explained.

Year-round school costs are too high, state reports

By JON MORRIS PB Staff Writer

Chino's controversial year-round school program generally costs more to operate than the traditional ninemonth schedule, according to a state

The long-awaited results of a study by the state auditor general's office show that unless year-round school (YRS) actually causes an avoidance of classroom construction, it will cost more to operate.

The Chino school district is one of 11 in the state examined in the auditor general's report on the "fiscal impact" of the YRS program. Officials noted there are 56 school districts in Caliornia on the year-round schedule.

The report, requested last February by Assemblyman Bill Mc-Vittie, D-65th Dist., which includes Chino, shows that only one of the 11 districts - Escondido - saved money by utilizing YRS as a means to alleviate overcrowding. Escondido schools avoided $3.1 million in building costs.

As a result of the report, which showed the state has spent $1 million more on YRS than it would on traditional programs, the auditor general's office has recommended the state Legislature not provide any more funds for YRS unless "tangible educational benefits" are detailed.

Since the auditor general's office concentrated on the YRS financial aspects and did not study possible educational benefits, the report recommended the state Department of Education conduct such a study.

State costs are generally higher under YRS because student attendance is higher, and state support is based on average daily attendance, officials explained.

The report indicates that most of the districts studied for the 1975-76 school year did not have to go on YRS to alleviate overcrowding.

"Overcrowding was not severe enough to maximize the financial benefits of YRS," it stated.

In Chino's case, the district avoided some costs by delaying classroom construction, but it was not significant enough in the long run, stated officials. Chino avoided construction costs of $433,500 during the 1975-76 test period, but that was a "one-time savings" only. YRS is costing Chino $266,700 more to operate than the traditional program each year, according to the report. Unless Chino can really avoid construction, there is no proven financial benefit from year-round school, stated a spokesman for the auditor general's office. He said indications are that Chino only postponed the $433,500 in construction costs rather than avoided it. The large building program underway in the Chino school district is proof the district was only able to spread construction costs over a period of time.

Three schools were exceeding their capacity in Chino during the 1975-76 period, the report states.

Eight additional classrooms would have been required at a cost of $433,500 to alleviate the overcrowding situation, officials

Escondido, meanwhile, would have needed 28 more classrooms if the district was not on the year-round program, costing $3.1 million. Because overcrowding was severe enough, Escondido's year-round schedule was financially worthwhile. The auditor general's report acknowledges that one-third more students can be accomodated at a school building under the YRS than on the traditional program.

Because classrooms are kept open all year, however, support costs such as heating and lighting go up. That is why YRS programs generally cost more to operate, notes the report.

Chino did not need YRS to solve overcrowding problems, nor did it benefit financially from it, according to the report.

However, the 1974-75 and 1976-77 school years in which Chino also operated the YRS program were not analyzed in the report on a specific

And the report admits most school districts opted for YRS because of the educational, rather than the financial benefits.

In the past, Chino school officials have stated they entered the program for various reasons, one of which was to avoid double sessions and to make maximum use of school

'Government has become too burdensome'-Younger delay a case to death," Younger He attacked the "happy news"

PB Staff Writer

State Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger attributed many of the problems facing the state and citizens of California to "too much government."

Younger, speaking at a Holiday Inn meeting of the Ontario Chamber of Commerce Thursday, disavowed any political overtones to his comments; and denied that a remark "if I were king" had anything to do with "inner ambitions.

He voiced strong support of the laissez-faire attitude of government; the unleashing of the free enterprise system and greater protection of the business and development factions in the state; the necessity of a strong death penalty: limiting the measures to be passed annually by the state Legislature; and the initiation of procedural reform in the court

"I don't think our state is in very good shape. It's the most wonderfulplace on earth. God has been kind to us. But it's a matter of compared to whom. If we have less than the best we must ask ourselves why,' Younger said.

"Government has become too burdensome. There are too many taxes, too many laws, too many regulations. We're suffering from too much government and the free enterprise system is not being given the opportunity to work.'

He believes the $2 billion surplus in the state budget, which would have been redistributed if the tax reform bill had passed, was accummulated because of administrative mismanagement and excessive taxes.

coming from Sacramento about the improving employment and business picture despite the fact 700,000 are out of work in Southern California. Business perceives the climate in California as unfriendly. I don't care how the automated machines grind the happy news out. The average businessmen are disenchanted and are moving," Younger asserted. A means of preventing the exodus of business and industry from the state is to establish better protections, require economic as well as environmental impact reports, and require anyone filing suit to prevent a development to post a bond in case the suit causes undue hardship on the developer, Younger said. "I haven't suddenly discovered any easy answers for complex problems. The state is not progressing as rapidly as it should. We should not allow too much government to stifle our development," he added. The state's top legal officer had strong sentiments about the preoccupation with procedural details by all courts, ranging up to the U.S. Supreme Court. The Supreme Court has become so preoccupied with procedure that it's forgotten the reason for the criminal trial is to determine guilt or innocence," he said. He cited statistics that 23 of the last 25 criminal appeals had been reversed on grounds of procedural defect although guilt was acknowledged.

"The preoccupation with procedural matters has created deficiencies in the system that can noted. "It's a tragic thing that could be corrected by various legislation, but we can't get anybody in Sacramento excited about it. Procedural reform in criminal cases doesn't get anybody excited.' A classic example of the need for reform is the Onion Field case, reported in Joseph Wambaugh's book, in which two men kidnapped two policemen and killed one. Due to procedural delays, it took 11 years and $1 million to convict the pair, said Younger.

He also suggested reform with lawyers being required to be criminal trial specialists before taking such cases; live television coverage of trials to inform the public of what happens in the courtroom; and the judge asking questions and screening jurors rather than attorneys.

"We're the laughing stock of the rest of the civilized world" on the issue of court and criminal system conduct, Younger claimed.

Younger also suggested:

-Engineer a state constitutional amendment which limits the Legislature to 100 measures annually, and the percentage of those introduced by Republicans and Democrats to be determined by the percentages of each party in the Legislature.

There were 3,360 measures passed this year. No legislator, even with excellent help from lobbyists, could be well informed on 3,360 measures. The system wouldn't work at all without the expert help of lobbyists," said Younger.

Challenge of mental illness

Anywhere between 20 and 32 million Americans are suffering from severe emotional stress and are in need of mental health care at any one time.

So said the President's Commission on Mental Health the other day as it reported the findings of a study conducted for it by the National Institute of Mental Health.

Even those figures may be conservative, say some members of the commission, who think it is probable that 47 million Americans have 'diagnosable mental disturbances" and are in need of professional care. This is in addition to five million people known to be mentally retarded.

Now 20 or 32 or 40 million people is an awful lot of people. But before we all begin casting suspicious glances at our neighbors, we should bear in mind that terms like mental illness or mental disturbance can cover a wide variety of human behavior, from true psychosis to senility to a little fraying around the edges from the stresses and strains of everyday living.

It's also possible that any panel of mental health professionals surveying Americans at any time would have arrived at the same conclusion as did the presidential commission; namely, that mental illness is rampant. Moreover, we would be willing to bet that the more mental health professionals there are, the more "diagnosable mental disturbances" will be found.

This is not to make light of the problem of mental illness, which can be one of the most painful - and expensive - experiences any individual or family can go through. As the commission itself noted, in the past two decades the annual cost of treating mental illness has increased 120-fold to $17 billion and the number of people directly involved in caring for the mentally ill has tripled to 350,000.

Because the nation is already making such an enormous outlay, the commission did not call for a massive step-up in federal expenditures in the mental health field. Rather, according to commission Chairman Dr. Thomas W. Bryant, the strategy is that of "making a case for including mental health insurance benefits" in a national health insurance proposal now being considered by the Carter administration.

Actually, the case makes itself. Coverage of mental illness or psychiatric treatment is already included in many private medical and hospitalization plans and certainly should be part of any national system of health insurance.

The real question is whether the nation needs national health insurance in the first place, or whether improvements in the present mix of Medicare, Medicaid and private insurance could do the job.

Pros at work

A frequent compaint of the police is that they often arrest a lawbreaker for a crime, only to have spirit of candor and sense of the case thrown out of court for one reason or another.

The complaint is backed up by a governmentfinanced study

Examining police records in Washington, D.C., the Institute for Law and Social Research found that fewer than 30 per cent of the arrests for serious crime in that city in 1974 led to convictions. Studies in other large cities have produced similar findings, it says.

At the same time, however, the researchers discovered that some cops consistently scored high in making arrests that stuck. Specifically, of the 2,418 Washington officers who made arrests in 1974, only 15 per cent of them made half of the arrests which resulted in convictions.

The institute doesn't know why a few officers produce most of the convictable arrests, but suggests that police departments might want to reward those who do with more rapid promotion, bonus pay or special recognition, and thereby encourage all officers to "look beyond arrest."

It probably can be summed up in one word: professionalism.

Joyce Hifler Think on these things

When you feel weak you are weak. The combination of thinking, feeling, and speaking of weakness makes it very real - and all are individual acts.

People are almost always stronger in a group. There is a bolstering of each other's existence to face what must be faced. But to meet the world on one's own, to take all the "she shoulds" and "he oughts" for what they are worth, to listen to truth, to rise above pettiness - that is cool judgment of what strength is and can do.

When you are strong you are strong. And nothing can strengthen like joy — a feeling that comes from within and is not caused by something outside of one's own being. The joy has to be there or outside happenings could not draw it out - strength is simply a channel to carry it.

The public forum Claims L.V. police underpaid

Following is another matter which the city of La Verne is placing at the bottom of a priority list that is headed by the cash purchase of a new city hall worth $750,000.

All of our city employees are still in the process of negotiating a raise which they, and I personally, feel they deserve. This is especially true in the case of our Police Department that has to work under poor conditions which the city continues to allow. For example, do my fellow citizens know that we only have 24 officers for a population of about 18,300? When broken down into three shifts, there are, on the average (and excluding the traffic unit and the few other higher ranked officers at the station), two field policemen to patrol an area of eight square miles! In other words, we, as citizens, expect each man to protect four square miles or 9,000 people

What is even worse is the salary scale. Of the 10 surrounding cities which help comprise the East San Gabriel and Pomona valleys, the top La Verne patrolman is 19 percent below the average pay scale, while that of the top sergeant is 29 percent. Can you guess what line they are given at their meetings with the main negotiator? "We have no

Now, what will happen (if it hasn't already) is that if/when something should go wrong or an officer not be able to do his job properly, it is he who will get the blamerand not the higher-ups outside the Police Department who make them work in such an inadequate situation to begin with. I wouldn't be surprised if they had a low morale due to knowing that they're not appreciated enough to be paid a decent salary. I think that this whole thing is a disgrace and shame to our city, and you know what? I also feel that we are very lucky to have anyone here at all to protect us.

Isn't this ironic, especially when you consider that "we have no money" for some things, yet seem to find enough in the general fund for certain others?

has book on wiretapping

WASHINGTON - President Carter, who did his share of handwringing over the wiretapping of the Nixon era, has now found himself in possession of a government handbook on wiretapping.

This handy, easy-to-read manual could instruct any enterprising snoop with a set of tools how to eavesdrop on telephone conversations. The White House is embarrassed. The telephone company is horrified.

Still, the Carter disciples are caught in a dilemma. It seems the taxpayers coughed up $47,000 for the instructions on how to wiretap.

It is contrary to the president's economics to deprive the taxpavers of the information they paid for.

The Office of Telecommunications Policy, which paid for the handbook, was all set to release it for the enlightenment of those who might be interested in the refinements of eavesdropping. But the telephone company raised a howl. American Telephone and Telegraph, one source confided, "is scared to death about too many people finding out about and the interstate long-distance network . . . It tells the reader how to locate, open, tap into, reseal and rebury our cables for the purpose of intercepting customers' communications.

The aggrieved phone company, therefore, urgently alerted Vice President Walter Mondale to the danger. ATandT president Charles Brown warned Mondale in a confidential letter that the wiretap manual "tells how to intercept suburban residential telephones, business data communication . . .

White House officials, putting discretion ahead of candor, have placed the 13-page, how-to-do-it handbook under lock and key. It is now being handled with the same delicate care as nitroglycerin.

The repercussions, meanwhile, have already reached Capitol Hill. Rep. John Moss, D-Calif., who uncovered the manual, is eager to know more about the government's wiretap ways. Apparently, the government has been so careless about privacy that it planned to publish the wiretapping instructions. Yet Moss has been denied access to the phone records of past intelligence wiretaps by the White House. Congressional investigators suspect that some of these were really Watergate-style political wiretaps.

It remains a matter of dispute, meanwhile, why the wiretapping instructions were written. An official of the Mitre Corporation, which produced the manual, told us: "We were reluctant to produce anything that could be labeled as a cookbook on wiretapping recipes, but we were asked to do it by the White House.'

The White House telecommunica-# tions chief. William Thaler, insisted he had informed Mitre explicitly that he didn't want a how-to-do-it book 'There must have been some confusion at the working level," he suggested: Nevertheless, he was ready to release the report until White House science adviser Frank Press urgently intervened.

'This report can lead to much mis-Press told our associate Howie Kurtz. "The government never should have asked for it." Now White House officials are trying to figure out how to get around the Freedom of Information laws and keep the pamphlet secret.

However, we have obtained a copy of the handbook, which is stamped "Controlled Distribution." We agree with White House aides that it would not' be in the public interest to publish the technical details. But there are some general eavesdropping instructions that are worth printing for their entertainment

For example, an "interceptor" who might wish to overhear the telephone conversations in a suburban residence, say, "in Northern Virginia between 6 p.m. and 11 p.m. Monday through Friday" is given 11 steps to take. First, he should "climb pole." Upon this lofty perch, suitable also for peeking into second-story windows, he will find a "terminal enclosure." He is instructed to jiggle the appropriate wires; then a tape recorder is recommended for monitoring the intercepted conversa-

While he has not made a flat-out announcement of his candidacy, he has sanctioned efforts of "Friends" to organize in his behalf. Deukmejian says, "If necessary factors for a campaign come together in January, I will announce for attorney

That, of course, is the cautious politician's approach. What the "Duke" is saying is that he wants to see the strength of his support in terms of people and money before he commits himself.

Although he can make the race without sacrificing his Senate seat, since he just won re-election to a fourth four-year term last year, his caution is understandable

In the first place it is not yet certain that Younger won't back out of the gubernatorial race and opt to seek re-election. Deukmejian probably wouldn't want an intra-party fight with Younger in the Republican primaries. He lost one such encounter

At that time Younger, then Los Angeles County district attorney, outdistanced both Deukmejian and Sen. John Harmer as well as Spencer Williams, who had served as Gov. Reagan's health and welfare secretary.

But barring unforeseens, Deukmejian's prospects at the moment look bright. He is the most formidable Republican to, so far, indicate a desire for the job. His Democratic opposition has yet to emerge, although Yvonne Burke, member of Congress from Los Angeles, whose striking beauty is matched with sharp intelligence, has made strong expressions of interest in running.

Deukmejian at 49 is a most presentable candidate. Lean and good looking, he is sincere and straightforward. Elected to the Assembly from Long Beach in 1962, he moved to the Senate four years later and has weathered re-elections each time since despite drastic shifts in his district by reason of reapportionments which have eroded any advantages for Republican candidates in the dis-As a senator, Deukmejian is well-respected and serves as the Senate's minority leader. Not the easiest person to become friendly with because of an innate aloofness in his bearing, nevertheless he is viewed by lobbyists and the press as an honest, hard-working legislator.

While he enjoys good rapport with his fellow Republicans, it would be difficult to label him, for he is neither the typical right wing conservative nor the average moderate.

His track record for the job he now entertains notions about is good. For he has been strong for law enforcement and led the fight for restoration of the death penalty both in 1972 when the issue went to the ballot and again this year, including the successful overriding of Gov. Jerry Brown's death penalty veto.

Additionally, Deukmejian has authored other legislation designed to curb crime including the law which provides mandatory prison sentences for those who use guns in the commission of crimes.

oes TV sway voters? NEW ORLEANS - (NEA) - One

enduring contemporary axiom holds that television advertising has become so ubiquitous and influential that it dominates the process of selecting everything from headache remedies to public officials. It's very fashionable to suggest, for example, that the television commercial has emerged in recent decades as by far the most essential medium for presidential candidates seeking to gain the support of a large and disparate national electorate. Television news and public affairs programming undoubtedly is the single most important vehicle for displaying to that sprawling constituency the contenders for the presidency, their personalities and their positions on issues.

But a previously unpublished national survey goes a long way toward destroying the myth of the indispensability of paid television advertising - notwithstanding the fact that contenders for the White House lavish tens of millions of dollars on that medium during every presidential campaign.

The poll results, obtained during the recent meeting here of the Republican National Committee, are the product of a nationwide voter survey conducted immediately following last year's presidential election by Decision Making Information, a highly respected Santa Ana, Calif., political research firm.

Among that report's conclusions:

The television "spots" aired on behalf of the loser, Republican nominee Gerald R. Ford, had a far more profound impact on the voters than did the commercials broadcast on behalf of the winner, Democratic nominee Jimmy Carter

The survey didn't seek to measure the quality of either candidate's television advertising, but the two commercials specifically recalled by the greatest number of voters polled both were superlative ads produced for Ford.

One was a "positive" ad which combined a series of striking photographs portraying the nation's strength and diversity accompanied by an audio track of a catchy song titled, "I'm Feelin' Good About America.

The other was a "negative" ad featuring a group of men and women, all identified as Georgia residents, who participated in presumably spontaneous sidewalk interviews in which they criticized Carter's performance as their state's governor.

Those commercials were part of a Ford media package widely acclaimed by political professionals in both major parties as being exceptionally creative and imaginative. They were produced by the Washington firm of Bailey, Deardourff & Associates.

The same politicians wrote off Carter's television advertising as neither inspired nor memorable - a view supported by the Decision Make ing Information survey, which concluded that Ford "clearly outperformed" Carter in the quality of televsion commercials.

The man responsible for Carter's television "spots" was Gerald Rafshoon, head of an Atlanta advertising agency which bears his name and a longtime political ally of the President.

Despite the fact that neither the voters nor the professionals were impressed with Rafshoon's campaign work, his affiliation with the election winner provided both instant celebrity status and a host of new Rafshoon's first major test this year came in New York City's mayoralty race. His candidate, Mario Cuomo, survived an initial primary while running against a crowded but lackluster field, then was clobbered in the runoff.

Rafshoon currently has a fat contract with the maritime industry to promote the controversial "Cargo Preference Bill," and he is in charge of the media campaign for Henry Howell, the Democratic candidate in Virginia's gubernatorial race.

Rafshoon may yet display great talent in the highly demanding art of producing compelling commercials - but if television advertising had truly been the dominant factor in last year's presidential campaign, both he and Carter would now be back in

Dr. Miller Cut hair not coming back

DEAR DR. MILLER: Geeper, our guinea pig, was having such a hard time with the hot weather that we gave him a hair cut. It was a pretty bad job. Now we are used to it but it doesn't seem to be growing back much. What's going to happen if it gets cold and he still doesn't have his long fur? - T.O.

P.S. He was a long-haired Peruvian pig to begin with. DEAR T.O.: Geeper might still get enough of his coat back before really cold weather settles in. Protecting him from drafts and seeing to it that he has a warm bed box available should prevent chilling. In really cold weather, he would need a heated room or some supplementary heat source.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Benji is a blue-blooded Burmese; papers, championship stock, and all that. We got him cheap with an agreement to let the breeder use him. The trouble is he is not usable even though he is now an adult, big and beautiful. He's just not sexy. The breeder wants us to try switching his food which we don't want to do because he loves this dark meat tuna and, fortunately for us, it is cheap. She thinks it could be affecting his sex life. We're sure it's something else. But not illness, he has never been sick a day yet. - S.O.

DEAR S.O.: Dark (red meat) tuna just could be the culprit. It's a good source of protein but undesirable for other reasons. Most important, cats fed this diet may develop steatitis. Steatitis, caused by a deficiency of vitamin E, is a potentially fatal disease affecting fat metabolism. Dark tuna does not have adequate vitamin Canned tuna for cats usually has additional vitamin E added but canning and processing may break the vitamin down before it reaches your cat's plate.

The average cat's diet is not deficient in E so most cats' performance wouldn't improve with added E. But Benji just could be deficient. He certainly would benefit from a change in diet. And while there are numerous other causes for poor performance (and these should be checked out), E just might substantially increase his interest and performance in matters intimate and amorous.

DEAR DR. MILLER: If you take a two-month-old puppy into Canada who is getting shots but hasn't had her rabies, does she have to get that, too? - B.D.

DEAR B.D.: No, puppies under three months of age do not require rabies vaccination for entry into Canada.

'The First Men' is the first in a series (you didn't think Time, Inc.

was going to let you get away with buying just ONE book, did you?) called "The Emergence of Man," eight other volumes so far, (depending on the market). These promise to trace our shaggy-browed ancestors through higher primate, worshipper, hunter, warrior, farmer, city dweller, sea trader, and builder of monuments, machines and empires. Not to mention (please!) the Mafioso, the protection rackets, the numbers games, sex on Capitol Hill, Watergate and a variety of other no-no's that have kept American palpitating from one edition to the next.

As I say, I am grateful to the courage and stubborn will-to-survive that were hallmarks of our ancestors, but sometimes I wonder if they were doing us a big favor by surviving. What with smog, television commercials and the Rams, maybe it would have been better if they'd just taken the pipe.

WOMEN'S EYES

Was none other than Havelock Ellis who said the most noted feature of the female anatomy is the eyes. What he did not explain, though, is why. Marlene Dietrich, whose eyes have been noted worldwide, did explain it. She said, in effect, the only reason a man notices first a woman's eyes is that he wants to find out if they notice him. Believe she had that right. It has been claimed that nobody ever observed any woman's eyes as beautiful except when those eyes gazed straight back at the observer.

posture to try to hide your breasts either. That can lead to other problems. Unless they are so heavy that shoulder straps cause you problems I would think you might just try to think positively about yourself. Think of it as a sign of a good figure. In brief, if you've got it, flaunt it. You might be better off than having surgery.

If you can't accept that, first talk it over with your family doctor. If you convince him you would be better off, then he might want to refer you to a plastic surgeon in your area who does good work. Most surgeons do good work but not all cases are successful and you might not be so pleased with the results afterward. If you have a misconception about yourself or have some emotional hangups, breast surgery may not be your answer either but may simply complicate matters.

By OSWALD as at JAMES JACOBY Today's hand appeared as one of the July articles .. South's four-club bid was a slam in vitation and North's four-diamond call was a below game acceptance. South I felt that when he made a slam try, he had done all he could. He merel y rebid to four spades, which North elected to pass.

Six spades won't make against a diamond lead even if trumps break and we stated erron cously that even five spades would be impossible against the actual troump break. We were way too s trong when we used, "Impossible," as several readers have pointed out to us. Actually, declarer c an and really should make five odd as rainst that 5-0 break. He either wins the first diamond or ducks. That makes no difference. Assuming he de icks he wins the next diamond, cashe is dummy's king of spades and gets the bad news. ruffs a third diamond, cashes the top hearts and top clubs, ruffs his last club, and leads a third heart. If it's important, Charles O'Keeffe is willing to take a little trouble getting there.

That is why every morning, six days a week, sometimes seven, he gets in his car and drives 110 miles to work. At the end of a long day he drives 110 miles back home. He has to be the world champion commuter.

Charles O'Keeffe is a drug abuse specialist. He works in the White House, for President Carter, clearly an important job.

"The drive isn't really as bad as it seems. It's private time, a chance to think things out, things I'm going to have to decide the next day,' O'Keeffe said. "I also get all of my dictating done. It takes about two hours, but it isn't wasted time.'

No, but it's still quite a grind. He lives in this quiet little town

Gassed up, he pulls onto I-95, flips on his CB radio and heads north. At Thornburg, and again at Dumphries, two Virginia towns on the interstate, he stops for more coffee.

"The CB tells me where the cops are and where the construction is. I don't talk on it, I just listen. I leave the microphone in the glove compartment. From the sort of conversation that goes on that thing, I wouldn't contribute much.

What Charles O'Keeffe contributes to the Carter administration is significant. He is on the staff of Peter Bourne, the President's assistant for health issues, and his specialty is south Asia.

Charles O'Keeffe is 37. He was in the pharmaceutical business in Richmond when he became interested in drug abuse problems. That led him to Peter Bourne, who was running a narcotics treatment program in Georgia and was a close friend and adviser of Jimmy Carter.

Defend sex changes on religious grounds

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) - Doctors who performed more than 50 sex-change operations at Baptist Medical Center are defending their work with transsexuals as a Christian response to a human problem.

"Society has looked upon these people as perverted freaks, and they have been shunned as much as were the lepers in Biblical times," Drs. David William Foerster and Charles Reynolds said in urging the directors of the Baptist General Convention of Oklahoma to allow the work to con-

"If Jesus Christ were alive today, undoubtedly he would render help and comfort to the transsexual as he did the leper, the blind and the lame," they added in a statement released for the Oklahoma Gender Identity Foundation.

The issue will be decided Friday when the convention's board of directors votes on the sex-change operations that were begun at the hospital four years ago.

The operations were halted during the summer at the request of the Rev. Joe Ingram, executive director of the state convention.

The board's committee on hospitals met last week and one member said it voted overwhelmingly against permitting the operations to resume.

The hospital's medical staff and lay advisory board have voted overwhelmingly to continue the operations.

The Gender Identity Foundation is composed of six physicians from various fields of medicine ranging from surgery to psychiatry. The group operates only on those patients whose physical makeup does not match their mental picture of themselves. Anyone accepted for the sex change operations goes through lengthy preliminary evaluations. There is "no effective psychiatric therapy for the transsexual and only through surgical change of the physical gender can relief and rehabilitation be accomplished," Foerster and Reynolds said.

The manslaughter charge was dismissed last November after Santore disclosed evidence that had not been revealed by his predecessor as state's attorney

Santore said Wednesday there is no suspect in the beating and stabbing death of Miss Gibbons.

The re-investigation was ordered by Gov. Ella Grasso after a one-man grand jury criticized police handling of the case.

Santore said the report recommends retrying Reilly, but "there is no new evidence for me to con-

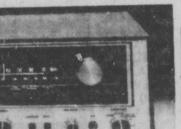

"While I choose not to speculate on anyone's motivation, I cannot, in good conscience, accept this report as fair and objective," Santore told Superior Court Judge Maurice Sponzo during a 16-minute prepared statement. Sponzo conducted the one-man grand jury probe.

The report "relies on possibilities, conjecture and assumptions which have no factual basis when tested against overwhelming contradictory evidence previously established," Santore said.

Tunnel warfare story traced

EDITOR'S NOTE - Associated Press Pulitzer Prize winning photographer-writer Horst Faas, who covered the Vietnam war for 12 years, recently made a return visit to that country. Here is his report of a trip to a former Vietnam battlefield.

An AP News Special By HORST FAAS Associated Press Writer

CU CHI, Vietnam (AP) - As Lt. Col. George A. Eyster lay dying from Viet Cong sniper bullet wounds on a jungle trail, he said to me, "Before I go I'd like to talk to the guy who controls those incredible men in the tunnels.

Eleven years later I met that man and he showed me the inside of the fantastic tunnel octopus that took 30 years to dig and stretched 150 miles, with tentacles sometimes winding right under the chairs of U.S. commanders as they sat in their headquarters.

Eyster, a tall West Pointer from Cocoa Beach, Fla., died in a field hospital while his battalion, the 2nd of the 28th Regiment, First Infantry Division, was trying to fight its way out of the vast underground complex 20 miles northwest of

The now peaceful tunnels were on the itinerary of a German tourist group I traveled with on a rare two-week trip to Vietnam.

One of the briefing ofheadquarters was Capt. Nguyen Thanh Linh. Dressed in an olive drab North Vietnamese uniform and Ho Chi Minh rubber tire sandals, he said in answer to a question that he had commanded the Cu Chi

Liberation Battalion dur-

That was the unit the American colonel's "Black Lion" battalion had opposed. The slightly-built, 45-year-old Capt. Linh looked quizzically as I pursued my questioning. Yes, he said, intelligence reports had informed him at the time that the opposing American battalion commander had been killed.

As he recalled those days for our tourist group the horror of a war I had witnessed from only one side became vividly real.

Capt. Linh spoke in French with grudging respect and almost without hatred about his former enemies, the Americans. The death of Eyster and many other Americans in those early war years shocked the American public, but as the captain talked it was evident the battles had not been one-

Of the 600 men in the Cu Chi battalion that fought Eyster's Black Lions in January 1966, only four survived the war, two officers and two noncommissioned officers, said Linh.

The battalion itself "was wiped out several times," he said. "Each time we reconstructed it. In the whole sector we lost 12,000 men in the course of the

The former battlefields looked lush and sleepy as ficers at district our group drove from Saigon northwest along the river bearing the city's name. Some deep B52 bomb craters were still visible, retained as fish ponds or wallowing holes for animals.

Youth labor gangs were and even water buffalo.

widening a road, and occasionally a reminder of the war would appear. A rusting armored personnel carrier with First Infantry Division markings and "Little Rose" painted on its side loomed out of a bamboo thicket. The wreck of a U.S. helicopter was overgrown with elephant

The battleground we were being taken to lay beneath our feet, at one, two and three levels underground. It was a twisting octopus of tunnels and caverns stretching from Cu Chi towards Saigon and the surrounding provincial capitals. The tunnels were marked in black lines on a 12 by 12-foot map hanging from a briefing room wall, and my first reaction was that it looked like a map of the New York or London subway system, with dots not for stations but for fighting positions and

The slippery, humid corridors, about two feet wide and two feet high, blocked with wooden trapdoors at underground intersections, spanned the history of the whole Vietnam war, starting from the days when Communist agents hid from the French police. But it was during the American phase of the war, Linh said, that the system was truly tested.

As more and more American soldiers arrived to occupy the surface above, the more we extended our system below,' said a senior officer at the briefing, Col. Duong Long Sang. "At the end we had a three-tier tunnel system and everything was underground - the toilets, the hospitals, all our soldiers, many civilians

The colonel continued: 'We literally dug for 30 years, usually in the dark, squatting down. We carved out about a meter every eight hours, and women distributed the earth on the surface, hiding it under fallen leaves.'

The tunnels crept under some U.S. positions. Several times we knew that American field commanders would sit like this on their metal chairs directly above us," said

Linh with a grin. The Vietnamese took our group for a visit, and as noisy swarms of mosquitoes buzzed around our heads we pushed ourselves through the narrow corridors, obviously built by and for slender Vietnamese. "We always moved in the dark, saving our candles and torches for emergencies," said Linh. 'Our amputees lay in the dark, sometimes for months.

But eventually the Americans figured out the counterattack.

First they used hunting dogs "and we battled them underground with rifle butts, mines and knives," said Linh. Then somebody had the idea to use American toilet soap and the Vietnamese started smelling the same as the GIs. "That stopped the dogs," Linh said.

Next came the "tunnel rats - small, tough Americans, like us," Linh said. "They crawled into the tunnels with explosives and gas to blast us out. We installed more escape routes, more tiers, but sometimes we were cornered and we tried to kill them with bayonets so as not to give our positions

'Many Americans died in the tunnels. They wasted much time pulling their dead back. That gave us time to regroup. The more we killed the fewer problems we had," said

The Americans tried flooding the tunnels "and we lost many men until we day.

DYING COL. EYSTER

constructed upper tier escape levels," Col. Sang

Finally, Linh said, came the "scorched earth" policy that from 1968 on saw regular B52 bombing of the tunnel complexes. Only direct hits killed, Linh claimed, but he described the awesome experience of a near miss: Fire would be everywhere, the body would be thrown back and forth in the tunnel, shirt and pants would be ripped apart by the suction of the air Sang stated: "The Americans used to say that as long as there were soldiers of the Liberation Front in the Cu Chi tunnels, Saigon would be in danger. They were right.

'We planned the 1968 Tet attack against the U.S. Embassy in Saigon from here. And it was also from here that details for the final, successful liberation of Saigon on April 30, 1975, were drawn up.

'The greatest pleasure in those days was to stick one's head out to the surface and just breathe air," said Linh as we climbed into our vehicles for the ride back to Saigon. I watched him take a gulp of the heavy, humid and undisturbed air that hangs over peaceful Cu Chi toName Torrijos' brother in dope charge

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Justice Department confirms an indictment sealed by a New York court charges the brother of Panama's dictator with narcotics smuggling. Moises Torrijos, brother of Panama chief of state Omar Torrijos, was indicted five years ago, a department source said

"It (the indictment) has never been unsealed because we have never found him back in this country to arrest him," the source said.

Department spokesman Robert Havel said Omar Torrijos "has never been a target of investigation.

Havel confirmed that on Oct. 3, Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell discussed with President Carter allegations that members of Torrijos' family have been involved in smuggling drugs to the United States.

She still remembers

By PETER ARNETT AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) - Her officer husband was the first of his West Point class to die in Vietnam, and she was left alone to bring up their four children, but Harriet Linnell says she bears no bitterness toward the communist soldiers who killed him.

'George wanted to be a military man, he was trained for it, and we have always been proud of what he did," she said in a telephone interview from her home in Beaufort, S.C.

HARRIET LINNELL

Mrs. Linnell has remarried, but memories of the death in battle of her late husband, Lt. Colonel George Eyster, returned with the Associated Press interview of the commander of the Vietnamese unit that killed him. Eyster's wife said Wednesday she held no bitterness toward the communist soldiers "because they were doing their duty, too, as they saw it." But she remains unhappy about the complete collapse of the Saigon government in "I don't pretend to know the political subtleties, but we could not help asking ourselves what was all that loss of life for. Yet I hate to say George's life was wasted," she said. The military tradition of the Eyster family is being maintained by his two sons, both in uniform. The eldest, George Eyster 4th, is a helicopter pilot in the Use a gun. Go to prison. It's the law.

SACRAMENTO (AP) -

The words are ominous. Californians are starting to see and hear them everywhere - in more than 100,000 signs on store windows, on billboards, and from a deep-voiced announcer on radio and television stations.

This campaign is the conservatives' answer to gun control proposals. Its big-business backers say they have gotten pledges of $2 million in free advertising to spread the word that anyone who uses a gun will spend time in prison.

But is that claim true? And is the campaign working?

Statistics from the state attorney general's office indicate that gun-using criminals have a 3-to-1 chance of going to prison if they're convicted - but that relatively few are caught.

And in the first year of the state's mandatory sentencing law for crimes using guns, there was no decrease in those crimes.

Nevertheless, sponsors of the campaign say they are confident that the mandatory sentencing laws, if properly publicized, will reduce crime. And they say they will push to extend mandatory sentencing to other crimes.

"Common sense tells us that if you've got a violent criminal and he's removed from the community, obviously you're going to bring about a reduction in crime," says Sen. George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach, sponsor of the law and founder of the California Stop Crime Coalition.

"If we get a 30 per cent reduction in crimes with guns within two years, we'll scream success, says Michael Rushford, the example, conventional coalition's coordinator and anti-crime director for the statewide Chamber of Commerce.

> bery dropped 30 per cent in the first six months of such a program, Rushford says.

by claims that the rising crime rate was due in large part to judicial leniency. The measures prohibit judges from granting probation in specified cases, though they don't bar plea bargaining or reduced charges that allow probation.

The Stop Crime Coalition was formed in early 1976, soon after the gun law took effect. The idea was that businesses have an interest in reducing armed robberies, so they would support a campaign to publicize the law.

Rushford says early efforts to solicit money from gas stations and other small businesses had little success, but the group had better luck with some of the state's biggest

Edmund Brown Jr., the retailers, Checks for $5,000 are starting to flow in, and the group is well along toward its goal of $200,000,

An even bigger contribution is being made by about 30 television stations and 100 radio stations, mostly in urban areas, who have agreed to broadcast advertisements without cost, Rushford says. He estimates the value of the air time at $2 million.

So far, Rushford says, about half of the planned 300.000 stickers - showing a prison cell with the superimposed slogan "Use a Gun. Go to prison!" have been distributed to stores.

A new television ad will be filmed in which a Folsom inmate Rushford says there should be plenty of volunteers will testify to the law's effectiveness. And the drive picked up steam politically in August when Brown dropped in on a news conference the group was having in Los "I'll bet anybody running for any office is going to help us," Rushford says. "We've got a good program cooking, and peoour door.

He and Deukmejian say the program shouldn't be judged for a year or two, until the publicity has taken effect. That warning seems well advised in light of statistics from 1976, the first year of the gun law.

A report by Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger, a supporter of mandatory sentencing, says the incidence of armed robberies using guns was virtually the same in 1976 as in 1975, but assaults using guns rose about 7 per cent - a higher rate than the statewide crime increase.

Federal officials think about half of all crimes are reported. Even if twothirds of California robberies were reported, that would mean there were 90,000 of them and only 4,500 convictions — a ratio of 20-1.

To critics like Brent Barnhart, lobbyist for the American Civil Liberties Union, those statistics point to a major flaw in mandatory sentencing the fact that most crimes don't result in criminal convictions.

'It sounds great - you blame it (crime) on judges ple are going to knock on so people don't think law enforcement is responsible for not doing a good job,' Barnhart says.

He also says mandatory sentencing laws "don't have anything to do with the roots of crime" and can be sidestepped by court procedures like plea bargaining. "I believe we should get some early improvement in schools...and in living conditions. But crime is always going to be here....We have to lock up the criminals we have

GRAHAM PARKER AND THE Rumour. "Stick to Me"

(Mercury SRM-1-3706) Graham Parker is the most talented performer to emerge in mainstream rock & roll since Bruce Springsteen, but his first two albums passed almost unnoticed, except in the music press. "Stick to Me" is meant to change all that; its best moments deserve to. Songs like 'The New York Shuffle,' "Stick to Me," "The Raid" and "Clear Head" rock relentlessly, serving notice that the Rumour is one of the hottest groups this side of Bruce Springsteen's E Street Band. Parker's vocals, which are a kaleidoscope of the great rock and roll mannerists, are as powerful as the music. If the album is flawed, in fact, the problem is that the material is not always as strong as it might be and that the production doesn't have the tough brightness such heady music demands. But these are minor complaints: Parker is a major rock and roller, and "Stick to Me" demands to be heard.

HIRTH MARTINEZ: "Big Bright Street" (Warner Bros.

Martinez is a sort of space-rocker; that is, he firmly believes that this planet is a madhouse, love is the only hope and it's impossible (or at least highly unlikely), and that the only hints of salvation lie outside. He is accompanied on these protestations of cosmic corniness by a cast which includes Dr. John and Garth Hudson of the Band, both of whom have at times seemed in touch with the outer spheres themselves. A weird record, for weird tastes.

THE STAPLES: "Family Tree" (Warner Bros. BS 3064).

After working semi-successfully with Curtis Mayfield for a couple of years, the Staples are joined here with producer Eugene Record (the Chi-Lites). Unfortunately, Record lacks Mayfield's feel for the Staples' gospel roots, and much of this material is too overtly sensual for the group to handle. The title cut is a bit of an exception, but "I Honestly Love You" and "Let's Go to the Disco" are as wrong-headed as anything you're liable to hear soon.

"GEORGE THOROGOOD AND THE DESTROYERS"

This trio is far too steeped in Chicago blues and R and B—they even do "One Bourbon, One Scotch, One Beer"—to qualify as punk or New Wave, although they're scruffy enough, if that counts. This is bar band music in the tradition of the J. Geils Band, and while it is not up to that standard, the Destroyers are worth checking out for devotees of the form. The oddest thing about the disc, incidentally, is the record company; Rounder has heretofore specialized in making mostly acoustic modern folk records—they have a catalog well worth investigating. Both it and the Destroyers are available from: Rounder Records, 186 Willow Ave., Somerville, Mass. 02144.

THE OSBORNE BROTHERS: "From Rocky Top to Muddy Bottom" (CMH CMH-9008).

Noteworthy mostly for the attempt to adapt the compositions of Felice and Boudleaux Bryant, writers of so many great Everly Brothers and Roy Orbison hits, to a blue grass context. Foiled by the deadliest sin in all of bluegrass: drums. It does include the Osborne's biggest hit, "Rocky Top," though.

Scott set for 'Hardcore'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — George C. Scott will star in "Hardcore" as a businessman whose life is altered when he seeks out his daughter in the underworld of pornography.

Illya Baskin and George Pusep, Jewish immigrant actor who were film stars in the Soviet Union, will play Russians in ABC's "The San Pedro Beach Bums"... David Gerber, executive producer of "Police Story," will participate in a workshop panel on television violence at the 84th annual Conference of the International Association of Chiefs of Police in Los Angeles on Oct. 5.

Ron Masak has been signed for the science fiction film "Laserblast"... Phil Bruns, who was the father of TV's Mary Hartman, will play a shady gas station operator in MGM's "Stingray."

To star in television sex movie

By JERRY BUCK

LOS ANGELES (AP) — How do you make a television film in which the central figure is a prostitute?

Carefully, says George Eckstein, who produced the six-hour, three-part "79 Park Avenue" for NBC from the book by Harold Robbins.

"I don't think people expecting a titillating story will find it here," says Eckstein. "It's an honest and moving love story, more of a love story than about prostitution. We think we're honest in terms of the sexual side of it, but I think a lot of people who may turn in for the sexual titillation may be pleasantly surprised to find themselves becoming emotionally involved."

The miniseries will be seen on NBC for three consecutive nights, beginning at 9 p.m. EDT Sunday.

Lesley Ann Warren stars as the prostitute, Marianne Morgan. Marc Singer plays Ross Savitch, her love interest and later her husband. Michael Constantine is Ben Savitch, the powerful gambling figure and father of Ross.

Eckstein, who said he first saw Miss Warren in "110 in the Shade" in New York, said there was never any question that she wouldn't get the

"There's always the feeling that we should get somebody new," he said. "It would be somehow more exploitable. But she had the talent. She had the looks, the figure, the talent, everything we needed."

There was another flap about the casting, however. Eckstein had signed Abe Vigoda for the role of Ben Savitch. But the producers of "Barney Miller" and "Fish" said Vigoda had a conflicting schedule. Vigoda was forced to withdraw, amid threats of boycotting his two series. An amiable settlement was later reached.

Eckstein said the structure of the book was drastically altered in turning it into a miniseries. "The first two hours of the six hours stick relatively close to the book," he said. "But the last four hours take off on their own.

"The girl in the book, to me at least, was not a very sympathetic or interesting character. She sort of reveled in what she did. What we did was have her forced into prostitution. We gave her more vulnerability, more audience sympathy. We also made it into more of a love story."

He said, "Sex is organic to the piece and it would be hard to do a story about prostitution without sex. She herself is active in the story as a prostitute for maybe only one hour of the six. But there's a lot of candor without being exploitive. It's handled well. It is certainly more candid than

LESLEY ANN WARREN

Ernest Lehman has real novel approach

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — More and more, the leading screenwriters and playwrights are turning to the novel. There are good reasons for this, but primarily it is because, when a person writes a book, he is relatively free of the intrusions by others that are part and parcel of writing for stage or screen.

The latest to join the parade is Ernest Lehman, one of Hollywood's more distinguished screenwriters. Lehman has written such diverse films as "North By Northwest" and "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?"

And now he has written a can'tput-it-down novel called "The French Atlantic Affair," which is sure to be a successful movie — but Ernest Lehman isn't going to write the screenplay for his own creation.
It's been sold to MGM, for a tidy

It's been sold to MGM, for a tidy sum, but Lehman was not even interested in writing the movie.
"In the first place," he says, "I've

"In the first place," he says, I ve had enough of these characters and this situation. I've gotten too close to it. I'm just afraid that, if I did do the screenplay, I'd be guilty of the sin I've seen in so many others—becoming too jealous and overpossessive toward the scenes and characters I created.

"The book needs someone new, someone objective. It's a big book and it will have to be cut, and I think someone with a fresh approach would do that better than I could."

He has, in his career, written screenplays from other people's novels, so he knows what can happen. Once, he wrote the screenplay based on Irving Wallace's "The Prize."

"I worked on it for an entire summer," he says, "and I decided that I just couldn't lick it. I had written a letter to the producer, Pandro Berman, telling him that I couldn't lick it, that I was resigning.

"But, before I sent that letter, I happened to spend a day with Irving Wallace and I told him what I was planning to do. He asked me to tell him some of my ideas for the picture and I told him and he said that they sounded good to him, so I tore up the letter to Berman and wrote the screenplay."

In "Oh, God!," which Reiner directed, God — portrayed by George Burns — appears as a senior citizen in sneakers and baggy pants to enlist the assistant manager of a California supermarket — played by singer John Denver — to be His messenger. The message: God is alive and well.

Reiner declined to say whether he belives in God: "I'll get too many letters, crazy letters. ... The movie is my statement on God."

"Don't worry about God and his existence. Live a good life and if there is a God you'll go to heaven.

"Don't pray to God for forgiveness. If you've hurt someone, ask the person you've hurt to forgive you. Apologize to him, not to God."

In the film, God behaves like a vaudeville pro. He drops a multitude of one-liners, such as: "The last miracle I did was the 1969 Mets; before that it was the Red Sea," and reassures the doubting Denver with: "Trust me, like it says on the

In his first film role, Denver utters such lines from the screenplay by Larry Gelbart — based on the novel by Avery Corman — as: "Chemicals. Everything has chemicals. We're turning kids into garbage cans," in reference to packaged foods at the breakfast table.

Denver, 34, whose recordings — including "Rocky Mountain High" and "Take Me Home, Country Roads" — sell millions, is "perfect for the part," Reiner said. "He really is like that: concerned with the environment, about the future of the planet and the human race."

For Burns, 81, who starred in radio, television and night clubs for 36 years, mostly as a straight man for his wife and partner, Gracie Allen, who died in 1964, this is his 16th film. He won an Academy Award for his most recent role in "The Sunshine Boys."

"Burns went to one of Denver's concerts and he was amazed, so impressed at the way Denver commanded his audience, kept them enthralled," said Reiner. "Burns said: 'The kid tuned his guitar for two minutes and nobody stirred. I'd have to do a soft shoe and tell a hundred jokes to keep an audience interested, but not John."

Denver's problems in the film are not quite Jobian, but being messenger of God is not exactly on the same level as being delivery boy either.

A modernization of the Old Testament story of Job, "J. B." is ART's "most ambitious and exciting project to date," says director Malcolm Atterbury Jr. "The play is set in a circus tent, which provides for a highly theatrical presentation," he said. "The excitement of the production is drawn not only from the set but from the conflict between the God and Satan figures and from the concept of a Job who is a contemporary businessman. It is a play about a man and his relationship to God.'

Ed Waterhouse of South Pasadena will play the title role. Others in the cast are David Roon, Nickles; Kevin Carnahan, David; Michael Mills, Jonathan; Amber Berkley, Rebecca; Richard Barrett, First Roustabout; Rion Garrison, Second Roustabout; Jim Gardner, Zophar; Michael Rayson, Bildad; Jean Lilly, Mrs. Murphy; Virginia Shannon, Miss Mabel; Steve Gassner, Jolly Adams; Glenn Calloway, Zuss; Merrilee Drake, Sarah; Sarah Drew, Mary; Marilee Monks, Ruth; Jana Miller, Girl; Suzanne Fergen, Eliphaz; Ernest Grindle and Rosemary Adam, Voice of God; Marguerite Terrell, Mrs. Botticelli; Jimmy Mills, Boy, and Fran Bullock, Mrs. Lesure.

Starr Faithfull mystery revisited most to do with shaping -

By NORMAN NADEL

NEW YORK (NEA) When the shapely young body of Starr Faithfull was found on the sand at Long Beach, Long Island, the Monday morning of June 8, 1931, her name provoked more speculation than the meager facts of her bizarre death.

It sounded made-up, like a chorus girl's, or a burlesque entertainer's, or a movie star's (what about Theda Bara, born Theodosia Goodman in Cincinnati?). But the facts the facts of her name, at least - were mundane. Twenty-five years earlier, in Evanston, Ill., Helen Wyman had named her baby daughter Starr because she liked the sound of it. Years later, after Helen had divorced Frank Wyman and married Stanley Faithfull, Stanley had adopted Starr and her

Nevertheless, newspapers described her as a debutante, which was ridiculous: neither the Wymans nor the Faithfulls had ever amounted to anything socially. Or as a prostitute. After all, when she was found, drowned and otherwise fully clothed, she wasn't wearing panties, and didn't that let everybody know what kind of a girl she must have

Eventually some specifics of her anguished, short life did emerge, including a circumstance even more shocking than the wildest speculation in print or gossip. But nobody knew how or why she died. Today, nobody knows how or why she died. The speculations persist.

Sandra Scoppettone, a

tip of Long Island, was born five years after Starr Faithfull died, and didn't know of the notorious case until she was researching crime for another writer, a friend, in 1975.

"I want this one," Miss Scoppettone declared, as she began to turn up reports about Starr's mysterious demise. And that was the genesis of "Some Unknown Person" (Putnam, $8.95), a novel blended of facts and necessary speculation, which has just been published. Expectations are high: first hardcover printing is 25,000 copies and next year Bantam will issue 375,000 copies of the book in paper-

Miss Scoppettone began with the usual writer's research - library archives of newspaper and other published reports of writer who lives in Green- the time. While visiting in port, near the outermost Greenwich Village, she walked down to 12 St. Luke's Place, where the Faithfulls had lived, and got to meet their landlady. The old woman didn't have a lot to tell, but shared all that she remembered.

'You're not the first writer to want to know about Starr," she quipped slyly to Sandra. "After she died, a young fellow came down and asked a lot of questions. He wrote a book, but he got it all wrong." The young fellow had been John O'Hara whose novel, "Butterfield 8," appeared in 1935, with its tragic heroine, Gloria Wandrous, somewhat loosely based on Starr Faithfull.

The book that emerged from Miss Scoppettone's research had to center on the most lurid circumstance of the case, and the single factor which had outlook on life: At the age of 11, Starr had been seduced by a relative, Andrew J. Peters, 45, the Mayor of Boston, who used her sexually for the next eight or nine years, keeping her dependent by addicting her to alcohol, pills, ether. She never liked what he made her do but it brought her trips, gifts, attention and the blissful state induced by the little bottle of ether he'd hold out until she begged for it. So it was hardly surprising that she grew up with no concept of loving a boy or man, other than romantic magazine stories, or that she saw sex just as a distasteful but effective way of getting gifts and attention. Starr's diaries, along with contemporary accounts, gave Miss Scoppettone essential insights, but she still had to fabricate at least the final two-and-a-half days in Starr's life. At hearings following the girl's death, the last person to admit was a beautician in Grand Central Station, New York City, who had spoken to her at noon on Friday, June 5. Starr, who loved parties, was not one to spend a weekend alone. She might have crashed a bon voyage fete aboard some departing ship. All that is known is that this girl, an expert swimmer, had drowned in shallow water (there was sand in her lungs). She'd been taking the barbiturate Veronal or crippling - the girl's there was enough in her system to have made her sleepy, but not to have knocked her out.

So author Scoppettone had to create one or more companions for that final weekend, and to surmise how Starr died. She elected to blend in the saga of an Italian-American family. "I used my own background somewhat." admits Miss Scoppettone, who is Italian-American, "but the family in the book is not my family.

'As for my account of the end of Starr's life, I believe that's how it happened. It was accidental. She did write those suicide letters but she wasn't trying suicide at the moment she died. There was a man involved, I'm sure." She paused, then asked: "you won't give away the ending, will you?" She was reassured.

As a novel, "Some Unknown Person" has impact more for its factual content than for literary style, yet Miss Scoppettone's weaving of this unsolved crime with imseeing Starr Faithful alive agined conversations and encounters is credible and absorbing. It hadn't occurred to her that the bookjacket painting - a shirtsleeved young man alone in a rowboat, with a portrait profile of Starr superimposed - suggests Theodore Dreiser's classic "An American novel. Tragedy."

Until now, Sandra Scoppettone had earned a modest living with her writing.

Dodgers ready to take Yankees

The World Series comes to Southern California for three games beginning this evening (5:15 p.m.).

It would be nice if it would end here Sunday with the Dodgers sweeping the three here. If Don Gullett is unable to come back for another turn, it might happen.

The Dodgers, with Tommy John and Don Sutton pitching Friday and Saturday, should be able to beat Mike Torrez and Ron Guidry. If Burt Hooton has the stuff he had against the Phils and pitches like he did against the Yankees Wednesday, the Dodgers could win Sunday whether or not Gullett throws.

But Gullett, even though he wasn't as good as the Gullett of his National League days, was still good enough to beat the Dodgers in the opener and extend his career mark against them

So when and if he pitches again, the Yankees are a different team. The New Yorkers may still have enough to win without great pitching in one game. But right now you have to rate the Dodgers odds on

Come to think of it, the same thing was said when the Yankees went to

The big thing is that the Dodgers are playing better than they did in the last half of the regular season.

They still aren't the Dodgers of April and May. But they certainly aren't the sad sacks of July and August either.

Even with Gullett's near miracle performance in the series opener, the Yankee pitching staff is in bad shape. If it weren't, Catfish Hunter never would have tried to pitch in the second game.

Lyle is incredible

And you have to wonder how much longer Sparky Lyle can be effective. Lyle has been the greatest so far. As long as Billy Martin can call him out of the bullpen, the Yanks are dangerous and in the game.

Still, I can't see it going more than six games at the most.

News that the Angels are close to hiring Buzzi Bavasi, the former San Diego Padres President, is certainly

But since owner Gene Autry has declared that Harry Dalton will remain as general manager even if the Halos do bring in Bavasi, the question arises as to where and how Bavasi will fit in between Dalton and Angeles President Red Patterson.

One of the problems with the Angels is that there has been no clear cut distinction of duties and responsibilities between the upper level ex-

Adding Bavasi will only muddle things more. I still think the best thing that could happen to the Halos would be the "subtraction" of "Hangman Harry" who, in six years, has never been able to produce even a .500 ball club despite having six different managers in that span.

Dave Garcia, the current manager, is not the answer either. The Angels need somebody to kick posteriors and build a fire under them. Garcia, like Sherry, is not the

Anyway, with the Halos already committed to bring in more highpriced free agents, it will be interesting to see what player or players they sign.

What they need is the same thing they needed last year and the year before that and back as long as you can remember.

Halos need catcher

For years, they have needed a good catcher. That is, one who can catch, call a game, throw, and hit. In 1975, they made Danny Goodwin, a catcher from Southern University, the top choice in the June draft.

Dalton said Goodwin would be the Angels' catcher for 10 years. As it turned out, Goodwin couldn't even catch in the minors and came up to the Halos as a designated hitter.

At the time Goodwin was drafted by the Angels, Dodger scout Ben Wade said it was a bad choice. That Goodwin was "a player without a position.

Wade and the Dodger scouts knew a lot more than Dalton and the Angels scouts he brought in from Baltimore.

The Halos also need a relief pitcher and another starter. They needed them last year, too. But instead Dalton went out and signed three hitters.

HERE 'N THERE - Associated Press had a story that Warner Hodgden of San Bernardino is reported interested in buying Ontario Motor Speedway.

According to Charles Cummins, president of the non-profit board that operates the speedway, Hodgden never has approached the board with any offer and the board couldn't sell if it wanted to because it has a contract with Expo '81 for the World's Hodgden recently bought into Bobby Allison's Grand National stock car team and the AMC Indy car experimental team.

Feuding Yankees go at it again

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The New York Yankees, one big, unhappy family, arrived in the land of the gossip hound and continued to tell tales

"We have a chance to win the World Series and there's one guy out there second-guessing the manager," said Yankee captain Thurman Munson. Munson was talking about teammate Reggie Jackson, who criticized Billy Martin for using a rusty Catfish Hunter as his second-game pitcher

"I wouldn't be second-guessing the manager," added Munson, who has been hinting broadly that he wants to be traded to Cleveland, the closest major league city to his native Canton, Ohio.

Martin, not on the trading block but close to losing his job all season long, also felt Jackson's loose lip could sink the Yankee ship.

'Reggie's having enough trouble in right field to keep him from second-guessing the manager," said Martin, who clashed with Jackson and Yankee owner George Steinbrenner throughout the season. "We're in this World Series as a team. None of our players should be talking against their teammate or the manager.

Fifty years after the Yankees' Murderer's Row team spoke softly and carried big sticks, the 1977 Yankees, "Murmerer's Row," was speaking loudly and carrying small Meanwhile, over on the other side of the field, the docile Dodgers were providing an interesting contrast, performing their version of "Love Story," an ongoing story of how 25 players and a rookie manager can actually win games without controversy

The only thing similar about the Yankees and Dodgers is that they each have one victory going into Game 3 in the 1977 World Series tonight

The Yankees will go with right-hander Mike Torrez, a 17-game winner during the regular season, while the Dodgers trot out medical exhibit No. 1, Tommy John, whose rebuilt left arm brought Los Angeles 20 victories this year.

'If I've got a good sinker, everything will be all right," said Torrez, who is playing out his option and could be making his final appearance as a Yankee.

KABC (7) & KTTV (11), 5:15 p.m.

John is also a sinkerball specialist, but he says the big factor in his game will be his curveball.

The key will be my ability to get my breaking ball over," said John, whose career was saved by a remarkable tendon transplant three years ago. "I've also got to have my good control and be able to change

The Dodgers won Wednesday night's second game at cavernous

Yankee Stadium 6-1 with an awesome power display of four home runs. Dodger Stadium, a very friendly home for the National League champions, is a cozier ballpark.

"I know I'm going to have to keep the ball low on these guys," said the unsigned Torrez, who has listed Boston and Montreal high on his shopping list. "If you get one up to them, they're going to hit it out.'

The Dodgers are not only happy to be home, they're happy to be Dodgers.

"I've been trying to tell everybody how lucky I am," said Dodger Manager Tom Lasorda. 'This club is built on love, spirit and togetherness.

Winning the second game did a lot for our club. What brought tears to my eyes was the statement of a security man in Yankee Stadium who said he has yet to see a team with the class we had.

The security man wasn't talking about the Yankees or their fans, who bombarded the Dodgers with an assortment of fruits, bottles and other objects Wednesday night. One missile, a rubber ball, hit Dodger right fielder Reggie Smith on the top of the head. Smith, in obvious pain after Game 2, said Thursday he was a little sore but would be ready to play

Jackson and Munson reportedly are threatening to boycott tonight's game because they are unhappy with their allocated ticket locations. No one, however, was taking that threat seriously. But Munson's trade request seemed very serious.

"There have been so many things going on this year that I just laugh at them now," said Munson, the American League's Most Valuable Player in 1976. "But, then, I've got five games, at most, to worry about.

With that, Munson left the locker room. A newsman bid the Yankee captain goodbye.

'Make that ex-captain," barked

John eager for big night

Pomona, California Friday, October 14, 1977

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Tommy John, the pitcher with the rebuilt throwing arm, has everything going for him tonight before the home folks in Dodgers Stadium as Los Angeles goes after its second victory over the New York Yankees in Game 3 of the World Series

John is rested and admits only to a little nervousness going into the game "but not like the playoffs."

Calm, smiling and cooperative, the 34-year-old left-hander declared, "Sure, I'm excited, but in the playoffs, I didn't know what to ex-

Tommy suffered through four unearned runs as the starting pitcher in the National League Championship Series opener against Philadelphia but wasn't the loser as the Phillies won 7-5. Then John came back in the finale to go all the way in a 4-1 victory that put Los Angeles into the memories. The only other game as ence 10 years make!

"I was a little too anxious in that first game and overstriding," he said

Three years ago when the Dodgers lost to Oakland in the world championship set, John suited up before the game but his left arm was in a cast. He had been 13-3 in that 1974 season when he ruptured a ligament in his left elbow on July 17.

A tendon from his right arm was used in reconstruction and last season Tommy John came back to baseball. That was when he was really nervous because, "I didn't know if could do it or not.

He was 10-10 in 1975 and this year led the staff at 20-7.

John pitched for the Chicago White Sox from 1965-1971 and says he throws today much like he did in those younger years.

A sinker ball specialist, he compares his delivery to that of Whitey Ford, the Hall of Famer who starred with the Yankees. He looked like he was just flipping the ball until you went up to the plate," the Dodger hurler said of Ford. "You know, in his very last major league game, he beat me. We have similar pitching patterns. Yes, I'm pitching just the same as when I was with the White Sox, only winning more.'

Of his injury, John says the pitches he had thrown were just like drips from a faucet into a bathtub and eventually it overflowed.

When does he think people will stop asking about his bionic arm?

'Never. Not even when I'm 42 years old," he answered with a grin.

two first-quarter touchdowns on runs of 6 and 50 yards.

He set up his 6-yard score with a 47-yard scamper four plays earlier and also broke loose for runs of 36 and 20 yards during the one-sided contest. Eight of his 35 carries produced 10 yards or more and he finished the game with an average rush of 8.2 yards.

Claremont's Fred Flye added 45 yards on 14 rushes and Kevin Britton scored the game's final touchdown on a 9-yard run late in the fourth extra points. In the fourth quarter, Jollymour hit the right upright on a 47-yard field goal attempt and was The Wolfpack now stands 2-1 in San Antonio League play and is a half-game off the pace of Chino and Damien, both scheduled to play tonight.

Doug Jollymour kicked all three well off the mark on a 45-yarder.

Claremont is 3-2 on the season while

Montclair is 1-2 in league action and 1-4 overall. Montclair's Todd Dahl had to be removed from the field by stretcher and ambulance after he was injured with just over five minutes to play. Dahl, a senior, was hit on the head during a play and suffered some loss of feeling in his hands.

The 'Pack dominated the contest in just about every category. Claremont had 382 total yards on 64 plays from scrimmage while Montclair managed 167 yards on 49 plays. The Cavs netted two yards in the first quarter. Claremont earned 17 first downs to Montclair's 11; the margin was 11-3 in the first half. The 'Pack turned over the ball just once while the Cavs coughed it up five times - twice by fumble and three times on interceptions.

Claremont noseguard Mike Sevilla recovered both Montclair fumbles while Scott Kegans picked off two Cav passes and Jeff Mace a third. Kegans, who has five interceptions on the year, also averaged better than 46 yards on three punts and ran for a first-down on a faked punt on the 'Pack's first possession, which ended in a TD. Linebacker Kent Gurney, who intercepted a Claremont pass deep in Cav territory, was one of few bright spots for Montclair. He returned six kicks for 125 yards, caught a couple of passes and made numerous key tackles. He was held to 21 yards Claremont was penalized eight times for 100 yards. The Cavs were cited six times for 68 yards.

Torrez may go to Boston

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Mike Torrez, the major league tourist who's averaged a new city every two summers in his 10-year major league career, stops in Los Angeles this eve ning to pitch Game 3 of the World Series for the Yankees against the Los Angeles Dodgers. Presumably, he'll be concentrating on the Dodger hitters, but money is on his mind these days, too If Torrez doesn't get what he wants from the Yankees, he may soon be buying traveler's checks and heading for Boston ... or maybe Montreal .

'I like New York and it's a grea place to play," Torrez said on the eve of his Series outing. "But I would be just as happy playing in Boston."

Torrez, the Yanks' have-fastbal will-travel right-hander, becomes free agent at the end of the Series Earlier this season he indicated tha he'd like to return to Montrea where he had pitched for three year

"I want a long-term contrac every player does," Torrez said. " something isn't resolved soon, wouldn't mind being a free agent.' Torrez' agent, Gary Walker, wa

Rangers of the great Monday night matchups of the season. But a few fractures and dislocations-plus some downright bad footballgot in the way.

So the fifth Monday night of the National Football League season presents a couple of so-so runner-up teams.

That's Pittsburgh and Cincinnati. Each is 2-2, trailing surprising Houston and tied with equally surprising Cleveland in the American Football Conference's Central Division.

Vikings, 'Pack remain knotted

Garey and Claremont remain tied for first place in cross country in the San Antonio League with Upland and Chino close behind

In Thursday's action, Garey, without Joe Ramirez, squeezed by Damien, 27-30. Claremont beat over Montclair, 17-41. Upland rolled over Chino, 15-47 and Pomona beat Ganesha, 15-40.

Ramirez, the league's top runner had the flu and did not run against Damien. However he is expected back next Thursday when the two leaders clash at Claremont.

Basketball contest set

The Pomona Park and Recreation Department in conjunction with the Pepsi-Cola Bottling Company will hold five area NBA "Hotshot" basketball skills contests Saturday.

Competition will begin at 10 a.m. with the top three finalists advancing to the city finals next week. The gyms of Fremont, Emerson, Palomares, junior high schools will be the sites. Boys and girls, ages nine to 18, are eligible to participate in six divisions.

All participants will receive a certificate with special awards for area and city champions. The EIGHTH RACE — 1 1/16 MILES. 3

More Americans

NEW YORK — The owners of the North American Soccer League voted to accelerate the Americanization of the league. The NASL owners decided to limit the number of non-North American players a team can field at one time in a diminishing scale down to six by 1984.

During the 1977 season, teams were permitted to have 10 foreign players on the field at one time. In 1978 only nine will be permitted; eight in 1980; seven in 1982, and six in 1984, Commissioner Phil Woosnam said.

In a move affecting the 30-man roster, Woosnam said the clubs would reduce the total of non-citizens from 15 to 14 in 1978, 13 in 1980, 12 in 1982, 11 in 1984.

Perez wins decision

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Abraham Perez of Tijuana, Mexico, won a unanimous decision over Hector Rivera of Puerto Rico in a 10-round lightweight bout at the Olympic Auditorium Thursday night.

Both fighters weighed 136 pounds and both were knocked down in the hard-fought battle. Perez floored Rivera with a left hook midway through the first round and Rivera knocked Perez to the floor with a right cross in the second round. Both fighters took mandatory eight counts.

Perez raised his record to 20-1 with 16 knockouts. Rivera dropped to 7-2 with three knockouts.

Rene Silva, 1271/2 pounds, of Leon, Nicaragua, won a decision over Johnny Jenson, 128 pounds, of Los Angeles in the first 10-rounder of the night. There were no knockdowns.

Silva's record is now 21-4-1. Jenson fell to 11-5-2.

Rams' scout dies

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — William Phillips, a fulltime member of the Los Angeles Rams' scouting staff since 1970, died of cancer Thursday at Daniel Freeman Hospital, the Rams said. Phillips was 58.

Phillips joined the National Football League team's scouting staff as a part-timer in 1957.

Funeral services are scheduled Saturday afternoon in Hollywood Hills. Pallbearers include former Rams' quarterback and coach Bob Waterfield, San Diego Chargers' General Manager John Sanders and ex-Ram guard Joe Scibelli.

Gilbertson loses leg

PITTSBURGH - Stan Gilbertson, a 13-year veteran of professional hockey who played last season with the Pittsburgh Penguins, had his left leg amputated below the knee

Gilbertson, who injured the leg in a traffic accident two week ago, was in fair condition after the operation, according to a spokesman at Presbyterian University Hospital.

Martina advances

PHOENIX - Second-seeded Martina Navratilova eliminated Jeanne Evert 6-0, 6-2 in a second-round match of a $75,000 women's professional tennis tournament.

In other matches, 14-year-old Tracy Austin defeated Mary Struthers 6-4, 6-1, sixth-seeded Billie Jean King ousted Laura DuPont 6-3, 6-3, No. 3 seed Rosie Casals Pomona are 2-1. Next beat Helen Gourlay Cawley of Australia 7-6, 6-3, Kerry week, Upland is dt Reid, seeded fifth, ousted Australian Cynthia Doerner 6-3, Damien: Pomona travels 6-1 and No. 7 seeded Wendy Turnbull of Australia turned to Chino; and Montclair is back Virginia Ruzici of Romania 6-0, 6-2.

By AMOS B. HOOPLE The First Tight End Egad, friends, Roland Ortmayer's boys are driving this correspondent a bit

My current local record is - heh-heh - 19-6, which works out to a 76 percent rate of accuracy. However, two of my six "losses" have been brought about by those La Verne Leopards..

Ortmayer's crew turned the old tables on yours truly with an unexpected loss to Whittier and last week's stunning upset of Azusa Pacific. Har-rumph!

And, wouldn't you know it. La Verne goes against another potent foe this week in a matchup which has caused the good Major some sleepless nights. However, after pondering all my data, and consulting with my La Verne spy, Hanawalt B. Studebaker, I bring you the following: La Verne 30, Cal Lutheran 28!

Yas, faithful readers, those Leos will do it again, this time at the expense of the much-touted CLC squad. Ortmayer, you won't fool this pigskin prophet again!

Elsewhere, Chaffey and Citrus figure to continue their Mission Conference success, but it won't be easy. Chaffey will outbattle host San Diego City for a 14-10 triumph, while Citrus will hold off a firedup San Bernardino Valley squad for a 22-19 win. MSAC won't be greeting the Owls or Panthers in the JC winners' circle however. The Mounties will bow to home team Santa Ana by one slim point, 21-20.

Nationally, we are at the midpoint in the schedule, and that's the time when conference clashes dominate the scene.

In some Pac-8 fireworks, look for USC to easily topple Oregon 40-0, while Washington St. will best UCLA 35-33, Stanford will knock off Washington 21-6

San Diego State plays WAC slate

Diego State University will play a full football schedule in the Western Athletic Conference next year, its first season as a

As a result, the Aztecs would be eligible for the league championship.

Technically, we only needed to play four WAC teams to qualify for the championship but when we then home against were able to get all six, we were delighted," said Ken Karr, San Diego's director of athletics. "Actually, scheduling them's easy. Dec. 2 against Utah.

and Cal will bomb Oregon St. 37-17. Egad, those results will heat up that conference race to the boiling point!

In that big showdown in the Big 10, Michigan will pop Wisconsin's bubble, 27-21. The Ohio State Buckeyes will keep pace with the Wolverines with an easy 47-12 win over Iowa, which means once again the Big 10 squad in the Rose Bowl will be either Michigan or the Bucks.

And, for those of you with keen memories, you will recall that last week the fearless Hoople method was the one which brought you Texas' shocking upset of Oklahoma.

Well, once again this week the Longhorns will be in against a rugged foe, Arkansas. And, once again, the Hoople system likes the 'Horns in an upset, 31-28! Har-rumph!

Claremont blanked Montclair, 18-0, in a San Antonio League contest Thursday while Bonita defeated Walnut, 10-8, in a Hacienda League match.

At Montclair, Karen Claussen, Pam Papa and Wendy Boland of Claremont each defeated all three of their singles opponents.

In doubles, Dianne O'Brien and Shana McBryant of Claremont and teammates Robin Su and Heidi Laird and Allison Giles and Pam Walker also won all their doubles matches.

Claremont, 4-0 in the conference and 7-2 overall, hosts Garey next week. In jayvee matches, Claremont defeated Montclair, 6-0 and Bonita defeated Walnut, 14-4. Bonita is at San Dimas next week.

"Pomona really throws the ball well," said Ganesha coach Garry Norvell. "They put a lot of pressure on you by backing you up with the long pass and then throwing the short one. They're also gaining confidence in their running attack." In a key game, Garey will try to keep alive its hopes of repeating as SAL titlist with a win over Damien. The Spartans stand 2-0 in league play (3-1 overall) after a 46-0 shutout against Montclair last week, and share the SAL lead with Chino (2-0, 3-1). Damien is rated second in the Southeastern Conference, Garey is 1-1 in league action (its loss was to Chino) and 2-2 overall.

New Orleans goes after A's

The head of the New Orleans Pelicans says the owner of the Oakland Athletics has agreed to sell his baseball team for $12 million, and all that's needed to bring the A's to the Louisiana Superdome is the money.

A. Ray Smith, president of the Class AAA Pelicans, said Thursday: "For the record, we have satisfactorily negotiated an agreement with Charley Finley, pending on coming up with the necessary funds.

Smith, who brought minor league ball back to New Orleans this year, said Finley wants to sell.

However, Finley has repeatedly denied that the Athletics would move from the Oakland area where they won three straight World Series titles in 1972-

"We have made an offer to Finley to buy the club for $12 million," Smith said. "He has agreed to accept 29 per cent down on an installment basis, taking the balance over 10 years at 7 per cent simple in-

"We need $3.4 million in front money," said Smith. "That's 29 percent of the $12 million..

"What makes this a golden opportunity is that the road has been

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - cleared," he said. "Finley wants to sell, and the American League owners are ready to vote on moving the franchise.

'Ten votes are needed and, as I understand it, Bill Veeck of the White Sox is the only man opposed.

"Also, the San Francisco Giants are willing to play some of their home games in the Oakland ball park to satisfy that area, which has a long-term stadium lease. The shift of Oakland would solve the problem in the Bay Area.

Smith said he already has the votes needed for American League approval to move the team to New Orleans.

He said that Finley, because of recent heart surgery, wants to divest himself of the team entire-

The group seeking the major league franchise is registered as a limited legal partnership, which means interested partners must be residents of the state. Smith said that if he were allowed to go out of Louisiana to sell shares of a team, he would have no trouble raising the money.

'We are selling 250 units, which will be a registered security under the security laws of the State of Louisiana, at $50,000 per unit," Smith said.

'Pack pulls into tie in SAL volleyball

Claremont pulled into a first place tie with Upland in San Antonio League girls volleyball Thursday.

The 'Pack walloped Montclair, 15-5 and 15-3, at Montclair while Upland had a bye. In other games, Pomona scored its first win of the season, 15-12 and 15-6, at Chino and Ganesha defeated Garey Ganesha won the first match, 15-13. Garey took the second, 15-8, and the Giants won the third, 15-8. Vera James and Marj Boor sparked Ganesha. James had 11 kills and Boor five service aces. In a Hacienda League contest, Walnut defeated Bonita, 15-11 and 15-7 at Walnut. In jayvee games, it was Claremont, 15-10 and 15-8, over Montclair; Pomona 15-0, Chino 15-11 and Pomona 15-12, at Chino. At Walnut, Walnut beat Bonita, 15-4, 10-15, 15-7.

Claremont (4-1 in the SAL and 10-3 overall) hosts Garey (3-2) Tuesday. Ganesha (3-2) hosts Chino while Pomona

(1-5) has a bye. Bonita, 2-4 in league and 6-4 overall, is at San Dimas Tuesday.

Texas, Arkansas boast kickers

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) - With kicker extraordinaire Russell Erxleben in his corner, Texas Coach Fred Akers can permit himself a smug look as he analyzes the Arkansas-Texas football game.

"If I had to guess, I'd figure on a low-scoring game," Akers said. "I'd figure on a game in which the kicking could be decisive.

On the other hand, Arkansas Coach Lou Holtz is not conceding a thing to Erxleben, a junior. He has senior Steve Little.

One expert says Little will be the first kicker drafted by the pros this year. That expert says Erxleben will be the first kicker drafted next year.

Both will be on display when the second-ranked Longhorns take on eighthranked Arkansas Saturday in Fayetteville before a national television

Erxleben, who led the nation in punting last year with an average of 46.6 yards per kick, is averaging 45.9 yards per try this year and kicked a major college record 67-yard field goal two weeks ago. In last week's 13-6 victory over Oklahoma, he punted twice out of his own end zone for 69 and 71 yards. He also kicked a 64-yard field goal that tied the game 3-3, and also contributed a 48-

Little is averaging 43.5 yards per try on 19 punts and kicked a 61-yard field goal last year.

Erxleben is a great punter," Holtz said. "As a placekicker, he is excellent. I think an awful lot of people around the country are saying they have an edge in the placekicker and that's not

'I would not trade Steve Little for anybody in the country. He's not kicking with a 20-mile-an-hour wind many times. That's a psychologically motivating factor. Then all you have to do is say, 'I'll hit the ball and let the wind carry it.' All you've got to do is make sure it's accurate.

'But when you know you've got to hit the ball just right without a wind to get it to go 64 or 65 yards, it is a different world and I don't care how you twist it and turn it. I will not concede anything in the kicking game to anybody in the

It's easy to see why Akers believes the game will be a low-scoring affair.

Texas is first in the nation in defense against scoring, giving up an average of 5.6 points per game. Arkansas is fourth, allowing an average of 6.2 points per game.

'I know Coach Akers thinks it's going to be a low-scoring game and most great games are lowscoring games, but I do think there is going to be some offense in that football game," Holtz said. "It may not be a high scoring football game, but I just think both sides will move the ball better than what most people feel like going into the football game.

In another major game, top-ranked Michigan hosts No. 14 Wisconsin in a battle of Big Ten unbeatens.

'Their defense resembles ours," says Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler. "They're not big but they have great mobility, good secondary backs and a much greater flow than any team we've played."

Last year Wisconsin also had high hopes before the Michigan game but came down to earth when routed 40-27 by the tough Wolverines.

'This time it's different," said Wisconsin Coach John Jardine. "This time we're 5-0. We didn't want to go to Michigan with any losses. We played well when we had to play well. We were up for Indiana, we were up for Illinois and we're going to be up for Michigan.

Third-ranked Colorado, the Big Eight leader in offense and one of the top defensive teams in the league, meets Kansas at

PLANT OF THE MONTH: WEEPING FIG

By ANDY LANG AP Newsfeatures

Solar energy has moved into public consciousness with such emphasis in recent years that we are inclined to forget that mankind has been harnessing the power of the sun in one way or another ever since the beginning of known time.

When the early human beings cut openings in the walls of their caves in the direction of the sun's rays, they were doing the same thing humanity is trying to do now - utilizing the solar energy to make their residences more comfortable. So were the development to achieve the American Indians when same levels of efficiency they built their houses with and cost-effectiveness as materials of high heat ca- present solar heating pacity - such as adobe, mud and stone — absorbing heat from the sun during the day and reradiating it into the dwellings at night.

In studies conducted by the American Institute of Architects Research Corp., it was determined that four houses built by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology between 1939 and 1956, and the Peabody-Raymond-Telkes house built in 1949, were the first fully documented solar dwelling designs where a major portion of the heat requirement of a house was obtained by a formal solar collector and storage system. Later, solar dwellings ranged from those that required no mechanical equipment for their operation to one which generated its own out the section and replacelectricity from solar ing it, which might be a difenergy as well as ficult job?

cooling. In the past few years, there have been a large variety of solar dwelling designs illustrating different ways of collecting, storing and distributing solar energy for space heating and cooling and domestic water heating.

collecting and storing radiation for heating and

During the winter of 1974, when the residents of Colorado Springs were faced with a critical shortage of natural gas, a solar house was built with a system quite different from those of previous solar dwellings. Capturing solar energy was achieved with two banks of collectors facing due south at an angle of 55 degrees. Heat loss from the collection surface was reduced by covering the aluminum collector panels with two panes of glass. Propylene glycol was circulated through the collector to absorb the heat, since this fluid does not freeze in the low temperatures of the Colorado Springs area. Heat from the collector was transferred to a large storage tank buried beside the house. Two heat exchangers located in the storage tank provided a distribution system. One transferred the collected heat to water, which in turn heated the air for distribution through ducts to can be powered by solareach room. the other preheated the domestic hot water before it passed through a conventional electric water heater.

As the AIA report

pointed out, it is technically possible right now to achieve close to 100 percent solar heating and cooling, but a more realistic and economically feasible goal, given present technology, is 70 percent solar space heating and 90 percent solar hot water heating. Mechanical solar cooling, while technically feasible, requires additional research, and systems. Mechanical solar cooling involves the use of solar-produced heat to power conventional mechanical cooling equipment. Heat pumps, absorption cycle and ranking cycle systems are representative of mechanical cooling equipment which utilizing heat pumps are under way in Albuquerque, N.M., and Wading River, N.Y. Solar collectors measuring about 200 square feet will be installed on the roofs of the test houses to collect the sun's energy. A energyefficient electric heat pump will work in conjunction with the collectors. The unit pulls heat from the outside air, even during cold weather periods. The heat pumps are air conditioners that run backwards to supply warmth. In the summer, the heat pumps cool like conventional air conditioners.

Market activity

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stock prices moved narrowly higher Friday during the first two hours of trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

Some bargain hunting was apparent. The market has heen in a slump for some time and the Dow Jones industrial average has given up more than 22 points in the first four sessions this week.

The Dow, off at the opening, was up 2.17 points to 820.34 shortly before the noon hour. Advances led declines, 550 to 510 among the 1,573 issues crossing the tape. Turnover amounted to approximately 9,000,000 shares compared to 10.460,000 traded during the first two hours Thursday.

Analysts noted that prices of some issues are at their low points for the year, and could be tempting to buyers. However, buying has been restrained in recent sessions by fears of rising interest rates. The prime rate, for instance, recently went up a quarter point and some money market watchers have suggested it may go even higher

However, Citibank, which announces Friday morning its prime rate for the ensuing week, said it was holding at the 71/2 per cent level. The possibility of a rise by Citibank, a trendsetter, had sprung from the Federal Reserve Board's announcement Thursday of a $4.9 billion bulge in the nation's basic money supply.

The prime rate is that accorded blue-chip corporate borrowers, and any moves toward increasing business costs help curb stock market progress.

Acting as a restraint on the market was a prediction from the Business Council, an organization of top corporate executives, that the economic growth rate next year will be lower than this year's and may bring on "new and unneeded" stimulus from the federal administration.

Topping the active list was National Cash Register, off 1% to 41. The issue lost 23/4 Thursday. The company reported rises in net income for the third quarter and nine months that were less than some market watchers had anticipated.

Second most active issue was British Petroleum, up 1/4 to 151/2. Third most active was Digital Equipment, off 1/8

International Business Machines was off 1/8 to 2577/8. The issue was up 21/4 points Thursday on the impetus of a record jump in third quarter earnings. Burroughs, another major firm in the computer industry, was off % to 66. It reported a 16 per cent rise in third quarter earn-

Prices on the American Stock Exchange were lower in moderate trading. Most active issue was Houston Oil, up 1 to 331/4, with Incotherm "A" second, off 1/8 to 161/8. Third was Shenandoah Oil, up 11/2 to 181/4.

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (BW) - Pacific Southwest Airlines (PSA) flew 196,855,000 revenue passenger miles during September, an increase of 15.7 percent from the like month a year ago, said William R. Shimp, president and chief executive

The September passenger total of 610,266 was an increase of 13.8 percent from the September 1976 figure. Total available seat miles for September 1977 increased 9.4 percent compared to September 1976.

Record earnings for holding firm

Financial Federation Inc., Los Angeles-based holding company for 11 California savings and loan associations, announced record earnings for both the third quarter and first nine months of 1977.

Net earnings for the three months ended Sept. 30 were $5,991,000, or $1.46 a share, a 57 percent increase over net earnings of $3,825,000, or 95 cents a share, for the like period of

For the nine-month period, net earnings were $15,373,000, or $3.77 a share, an increase of 58 percent over the $9,719,000, or $2.41 a share, earned during the like period of Earnings per share are based on 4,114,000 average shares outstanding for the third quarter of 1977 and 4,074,000 for the ninemonth period. Per share figures for both the third quarter and first nine months of 1976 are based on 4,037,000 average shares outstanding.

Revenues for the third quarter were also at a record high of $42,887,000, up 23 percent from revenues of $34,752,000 during the like period of 1976. For the nine months, record revenues were $121,123,000 compared with $97,374,000 last year. Edward L. Johnson, Financial Federation chairman and president, said that the upward trend in earnings is primarily the result of record growth in the size and yield of the company's lawn portfolio, stimulated by the greatest loan volume in the company's history.

Loan volume during the third quarter exceeded $157 million, 35 percent more than the $116 million in new loans made in the like period last year. During the first nine months of 1977, new loan volume totaled $470 million, a 42 percent increase over last year's loan volume for the like period of $331 million.

The average yield on loans made during the third quarter was 9.42 percent, compared to 9.32 percent for loans made during the like period a year ago. For the full nine-month period, average loan yield was 9.24 percent compared to 9.17 percent in 1976.

As of Sept. 30, the company's total loan portfolio totaled $1.774 billion with an average yield of 8.79

Redken sales, The bank, which publicly profits rise

CANOGA PARK, Calif. Redken Laboratories Inc. reported a 20 percent increase in fiscal year 1977 sales and a 25 percent increase in fiscal 1977 earnings compared with fiscal 1976.

Net sales for the fiscal vear ended July 31 were $51,103,000 as compared with $42,659,000 for the fiscal year ended July 31, 1976, and net income increased to $4,115,000 from $3,280,000 in 1976. Net income per common share for fiscal year 1977 was $1.80 compared to $1.50 for fiscal year 1976.

Sales for the fourth quarter ended July 31 were $12,549,000, up 10 percent from $11,405,000 for the comparable period last year. Income for the quarter was up 23 percent to $971,000, or 42 cents a share, from $792,000, or 34 cents, primarily due to investment tax credit.

Investment tax credit on the company's new principal facility contributed 20 cents per share to the year-to-date earnings and 7 cents per share to the current quarter.

Redken Laboratories, which has offices in the United States, Canada, England, West Germany, Australia and Japan, manufactures an extensive line of men's and women's hair care and cosmetic products that are distributed through beauty salons and barber stylist salons for use and resale.

Redken Laboratories is a pioneer in the development of beauty products emphasizing the scientific approach to natural from $1.498 billion, at an average yield of 8.51 percent, one year earlier. The company's margin between loan portfolio vield and the combined cost of savings deposits and borrowing from the Federal Home Loan Bank was 2.36 percent at the end of September, up seven basis points from the end of the second quarter of this year and 22 basis points from the 2.14 percent margin as of Sept. 30,

Total savings deposits, including interest credited to accounts, increased $54 million during the third quarter, up 11 percent from the net gain of $48 million in the like period last year. For the year to date, savings deposits grew a record $180 million. an increase of 13 percent over last year's nine-month gain of $159 million. Total savings deposits at the company's 11 associations were $1,749 billion at the close of the third quarter, up 15 percent from total deposits of $1.52 billion on year earlier.

Johnson noted that interest payments generated by the company's loan portfolio were responsible for 86 percent of revenues in the third quarter and 85 percent for the first nine

"Loan portfolio interest is our most stable and consistent source of income,' he said, "and is therefore very material to our future profitability. The high percentage of loan yield to total revenues is indicative of the company's determination to commit the major portion of its resources to residential lending rather than real estate development or compared to $31.48.

'We are firmly committed to the historical role of a savings and loan as the nation's primary housing lender. Indicative of this has been the full utilization of our savings capital of mortgage loans. During the third quarter, our loan portfolio outgrew total savings by about $25 million, almost equalling the combined amount of all savings deposits and our Federal Home Loan Bank debt of about $28 million.

Out $1.8 billion loan portfolio is comprised of more than 60,000 loans, averaging about $28,000 each. About 90 percent of this year's lending was in oneto-four unit homes loans. We feel that by broadly diversifying our thrift funds into residential lending, we are fulfilling our public obligation as well as serving the best interest of our stockhol-Johnson also noted that the company now owns no development or investment properties, and has reduced its real estate acquired in settlement of loans to $2.4 million from $4.8 million one year ago.

General and administrative expenses represented only 11.46 percent of revenues in the third quarter, compared to 12.66 percent for the like period last year. For the first nine months of 1977, general and administrative expenses represented 12.23 percent of revenues as compared to 13.04 percent for the like period of 1976.

Stockholders' equity was at a record high of $145 million at the end of the third quarter, up from $127 million one year ago. Book value per share was $35.22

Bank planning variable rates for home loans

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) Bank of America announced it will introduce in California early next year a new type of variable rate home loan - the interest rate on which will be reviewed on a five-year

The bank said some aspects of the loan are patterned after the five-year rollover mortgage which has worked well in Canada.

endorsed the five-year rollover concept in April 1976 said the new loan program is being developed in response to a continuing need for assured sources of mortgage

Gov. Brown recently signed legislation, 'also supported by the bank, permitting such loans beginning Jan. 2, 1978.

The bank said five-year variable rate real estate loans will be made at fixed interest rates for five years and automatically reviewed for possible rate changes at the end of the fifth year. Rate changes will be tied to movements of a predetermined index which reflects the prevailing cost of real estate funds generally available in the market.

George H. Haley, senior vice president for real estate loans said, "Since for many people the monthly mortgage payment is a primary consideration in planning their personal budgets, we believe the stability of a five-year rate review will be attractive."

At the time of five-year rate reviews, the customer will have the option of accepting the new rate or paying off the loan without penalty.

If a rate increase is necessary, the borrower also will have the option of retaining about the same monthly payment by electing to extend the maturity on the loan from the usual 30 years up to a maximum of 40 years.

The borrower also may receive the benefit of a decline in the cost of funds index through a decrease in interest rate.

MARKET DROPS - Traders throng floor of the New York Stock Exchange as the pace picks up with widespread selling due to what analysts believed was concern over rising interest rates.

They said long term rates in the bond market had lately joined in the rising trend that began several months ago in the short term

State soybean production rising

Agricultural researchers think Central California farmers can economically grow soybeans, one of the few crops the farm-rich Golden State imports in large quantity.

In fact, there's been a boom in soybean production this year as growers planted between 3,000 and 4.000 acres to the crop in the San Joaquin Valley, says Bill McClellan, a University of California farm adviser in Tulare County

Significant plantings also have been reported in the Sacramento Valley by farmers anxious to cut into the nearly 700,000 tons of soybeans and their diverse byproducts now imported into California annually.

All of California's soybeans were imported until McClellan and Fresno State University professor Marinus Van Elswyk Jr. began separate experiments with them a few years ago.

Soybeans, used for vegetable oil, other human food products and animal feed, had been tried on the San Joaquin Valley's west side in the late 1950s and again in the late 1960s. But high boron content in the soil and low prices caused "a total wipeout" of some crops, Van Elswyk says.

"The price then was $1.90 to $1.95 a bushel. It's now $8 to $10 a bushel which changed everybody's thinking," he explains.

The research showed that soybeans do better on where boron in the soil is not a problem. Pests also have not damaged plants in that area, Van Elswyk

Tests showed that two varieties-Williams and Amsoy-provide yields exceeding 3,000 pounds to the acre, McClellan said.

'We find a grower has to get 2,500-3,000 pounds of beans per acre for the crop to be economical, and the beans have to be worth $6 a bushel or better," he adds.

Growers achieve those high yields by putting a seemingly astronomical 150,000-200,000 plants on each acre.

'Higher plant populations reduce the number of pods low to the ground which harvesters don't pick up very well," Mc-Clellan says.

Careful varietal selection also seems to be eliminating shattering of seeds during fall harvest, he says. One Fresno State student is crossbreeding seeds in an attempt to grow a strain especially adapted to California's climate.

The hot, dry weather should itself help provide better looking soybeans with fewer blemishes than are grown in the Midwest, McClellan says. There, rain sometimes causes mold and spots.

But the bottom line for growers is whether they can make more money planting soybeans or something else as a second crop after winter grains are harvested.

Plan to keep oil prices ahead of inflation rate

VIENNA, Austria (AP) - Western oil companies and the OPEC nations agreed at a meeting here that oil prices should keep ahead of the general inflation rate in order to spur development of new reserves of gas and oil as well as other forms of energy

The average annual inflation rate in Western industrialized nations is about 7 per cent, and Algeria proposed a 15 per cent price increase for 1978. This was supported by Libya, Kuwait, Qatar and the Royal Dutch-Shell company. But the reaction of Saudi Arabia, the largest producer in the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries and a price "moderate," could not be learned.

The opinions expressed at the three-day OPEC 'seminar'' are not binding on the OPEC oil ministers at their price-fixing meeting Dec. 20 in Caracas, Venezuela. Lower-ranking officials represented the oil countries. But reports of the discussion, given at a press briefing afterward, indicated that a price increase is in the works.

All the members of OPEC except Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates decided last December decided on a 15 per cent price hike for 1977, but by mid-year pressure from Saudi Arabia forced the oil cartel to limit the increase to 10 per

Speaker after speaker said oil and natural gas production is not keeping pace with demand and that there are only two solutions: sharply cutting back demand, or raising prices high enough to encourage research, exploration and production.

Some delegates claimed the meeting was a major step toward "detente" between OPEC and its customers.

Joyce Brounds Cocaine not harmless

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: My girlfriend just took a new job. Her boss is a very rich, not-too-bad-looking, middle-aged man. Although he has three children and a wife, he's hot to turn on my friend and uses every means he can think of. At first she refused his invitations to dinners and parties, but last week, she accepted. After dinner he offered her cocaine and my friend used it. She had glowing reports. He said it has been scientifically proved harmless. It only hurts his pocketbook, he said. The man hasn't gotten to her, but this drug really did. I'm worried. She's said it's non-addictive and that she knows what she's doing. -

DEAR B.B.: I share your concern about your friend. She's playing with fire and is bound to be burnt. Her boss is obviously taking advantage of her and once he tires of this game, he'll think of some reason to get rid of her. In the meantime, she may become psychologically addicted to cocaine.

Cocaine is not a harmless drug. Although the hazards are still unclear, we know it significantly increases heart rate and blood pressure. This in itself can be dangerous, but the greatest danger is the psychological dependence that develops with so many users. It provides a quick drug high, and just as with any other mood-changing drug, users turn to it to escape their problems. The drug becomes a crutch that limits the individual's growth and emotional development. Instead of facing problems, they reach for the quick fix.

I doubt that you'll be able to protect your friend. This may be something she'll have to live through and learn the hard way.

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: I have a 15vear-old son who is intelligent, gifted and a straight-A student. Last year, we moved from the country to the city and I'm afraid he'll get in with a bad lot in our neighborhood, most of whom have been arrested already for delinquency. We are a proud black family and it would break our hearts if we lost our son now. I say lost, because that's just what happens once a boy joins gangs and gets involved in crime. Black youths in our town don't get a second chance. I can't afford to put him in a different school or to move. I don't know what to do to keep him strong and

It may seem a mystery how a legless snake can crawl about. To travel along, snakes use several remarkable methods of locomotion.

Most snakes make their way over the ground by bending their long, flexible bodies into a series of S-shaped curves. By pushing the rear of each curve against the ground, the snake glides forward. Water snakes swim with the same serpentine motion.

Most snakes have big belly scales that are moved forward camera, radio, Johnny in a series of ways by special Wonder Puzzle Book or in a series of ways by special muscles that help in locomo-

Allende's daughter a suicide

MEXICO CITY (AP) Beatriz Allende, daughter of the late Chilean President Salvador Allende. committed suicide at her home in Havana, the official Cuban news agency reported.

The agency, Prensa Latina, said Miss Allende was found dead of a selfinflicted gunshot wound Tuesday. A friend in Mexico City said she was about

The report said she was driven to suicide by "the psychological wounds she received Sept. 11, 1973," when her father died during the military coup that overthrew his Marxist government "Since the death of the constitutional Chilean president, Beatriz had been in a depressed state and showed deep regret for not having fallen in combat in Moneda Palace," where Allende died, the Cuban report said.

Allende's family and survivors of his regime claint he was murdered by the rebellious troops who attacked the presidential palace in Santiago, but the military junta that overthrew him claims he committed suicide.

Prensa Latina said a public funeral would be held in Havana for Miss Allende after her relatives arrive. Allende's widow and anoth er daughter, Isabel, live in Mexico City but are reported traveling in Europe.

Skunk scent for hunters

MINNEAPO LIS (AP) -Texas lirm has developed a new essence for deer hunter's to mask their scent. It smells exactly like freish skunk spray

"It's just like the real juice," says John Adams, a representative of Skunk Skreen, the firm that is marketing the artificial scent developed by a chemist at Texas A&M.

The firm advises hunters not to put the skurik essence directly on their clothes, but on a stun ap or log. A stick is even better because it can be moved if the wind shifts.

The chemical comes; in two bottles which can be mixed in the field to produce the scent. Separately, the solutions have no offensive smell.

Adams says the smell of skunk is "a natural wood s odor and the other animals pay no attention to it.'
